L.A. 'slasher' kills ninth victim 747s to Iran

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

The ninth victim of the throat-ripping Los Angeles "slasher" was found in a Hollywood apartment Friday afternoon, raising fears among police that the killer might spread his reign of terror throughout the Southland.

A police spokesman said Clyde C. Hay, described as a big single man in his 40s, was the latest victim of a psychopath who earlier preyed only on derelicts in the central area of Los Angeles.

Friday's grisly discovery was made shortly before 3 p.m. by the victim's supervisor, who came to the apartment at 1525 N. Van Ness Ave. to learn why Hay hadn't shown up for work at the National Cash Register Co. since Tuesday.

Police said the dead man was lying on his back on the living-room floor in his bachelor apartment, his throat slashed from ear to ear.

Shortly after the body was found, a young man was taken into custody by police at a coffee shop four blocks away, but he was later released.

A customer at the coffee shop at Sunset Boulevard and Gower Street had called police to the scene because the young man matched a description and composite sketch circulated by detectives.

Three hours later the young man, the sixth to be questioned by police Friday because of a resemblance to the composite drawing, was released.

Police Lt. Dan Cooke, while keeping silent about the source of the composite sketch, admitted, "This sketch we've released is the sketchiest one we've had."

"It's a combination of information obtained from a variety of people. It may not even be good,"

Cooke said. "But at least it's something."

The description of the "slasher" said he's a 6-foot, 190-pound man with stringy blond hair, high cheekbones, a scar on his hand and bushy eyebrows.

Friday's victim was found six blocks from the apartment where the eighth victim, George

NEW YORK—Trans World Airlines, which has been buffeted by financial troubles, announced Friday that the Iranian government had bought six of its 19 Boeing 747 jumbo jets for $99 million.

The transaction was believed to be the largest used-plane sale on record, and negotiations are continuing for Iranian purchase of six more of TWA's 747s.

TWA conducted negotiations in Tehran with Gen. H. Toufanian, who represented the Imperial Majesty Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlavi.

Charles C. Tillinghast, Jr., TWA chairman, said: "The Shah's clear understanding of the importance of United States technology as well as the economic difficulties facing the people of the United States combined with his personal desire to be helpful contributed significantly to the satisfactory conclusion of this complex negotiation."

THE TWA CHAIRMAN also said "this agreement provides a basis for future discussions with Iranian authorities regarding a wide range of aviation-related issues."

Airline sources said the TWA deal had no bearing on the increasingly intensive financial talks that Pan American World Airways, intermittently threatened with bankruptcy, has been conducting with the Iranians for Iranian investments and loans.

Nixon aide Colson set free by judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles W. Colson went free Friday, his sentence shortened like that of other major White House figures convicted in the Watergate affair.

"I'm very grateful to the Lord that this could happen," Colson told reporters as he returned to his home in suburban McLean, Va., for the first time since he went to prison nearly seven months ago.

The former special counsel to Richard M. Nixon when he was president said he was grateful to U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who hours earlier had signed an order reducing Colson's one-to-three-year sentence to "time served."

Colson was in his lawyer's office in Washington when the judge personally telephoned the order. He had spent the day being interviewed by Watergate prosecutors, who still are working on aspects of the break-in and cover-up.

Colson told reporters he might eventually write about his experiences, as other Watergate figures have, but that he had no plans for a lecture tour.

He said he might also write of his spiritual conversion and said he wants to spend as much time as he can in religious work.

Mrs. Colson could only stammer her reaction to her husband's sudden release: "I can't tell you... it's just too marvelous."

Before going home, the Colsons drove in the family station wagon to Ft. Holabird, at the edge of Baltimore 40 miles away, to pick up his belongings and to say goodbye to friends.

"It's wonderful to be out," he told reporters there, adding that he planned to take a little more time to think and be with my family."

In reducing Colson's sentence, Gesell said:

"This action is taken by reason of defendant's serious family difficulties which have greatly aggravated the severity of the sentence imposed."

Court order freezes Nixon's tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled Friday that tapes and documents accumulated during Richard M. Nixon's presidency belong to the government, but the Court of Appeals promptly put a freeze on his order.

In a late-afternoon action after a day of rapid-fire court orders, the District of Columbia appellate court issued a stay order on Richey's ruling and scheduled a hearing for 3 p.m. EST today to decide whether a three-judge panel should be set up to consider Nixon's claims to the materials.

Richey called Nixon's demands for the tapes and documents he accumulated in the White House "contrary to the nature of the office of the President and the Constitution" and said a former president can make no claim of executive privilege.

His 99-page ruling, formally issued at 2:30 a.m. EST Friday, dealt with freedom of information suits filed by five groups and individuals. He had before him at the time a separate suit by Nixon, challenging the constitutionality of a new law — enacted by Congress and signed by President Ford in December — declaring the Nixon materials to be government property.

At 10 a.m. the appellate court filed a ruling suggesting that Richey not act on either case until a Nixon petition, requesting a three-judge court on the constitutional question, was resolved.

Since Richey's ruling had been filed first, the initial appellate action was moot. Nixon lawyer Herbert J. Miller asked at 4:10 p.m. that the appeals court reconsider its morning ruling in light of the Richey decision, and the stay order was filed less than an hour later.

Richey's ruling would affect all the official documents of the Nixon presidency, but none of his personal effects which are packed for shipment to San Clemente where he now lives.

In a separate action, Richey announced a hearing for Tuesday to resolve the dispute over Nixon's personal materials. Over the weekend the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press will review indices and photographs of the memorabilia to determine whether any are government-owned.

Richey also set a hearing for Thursday on Nixon's request for a three-judge panel but admitted in court that his hands would be tied unless the appeals court lifts its stay.

His ruling that the government owns the official materials does cover the controversial tape-recorded conversations in the White House, but, if it is allowed to stand, Richey has outlined a complicated procedure which would in effect give Nixon the right to censor personal and unofficial material.

The Office of the Special Prosecutor could challenge some or all of these deletions, and it then would be up to the court to study them and decide.

The White House had no comment on Friday's rulings, and neither did Nixon in San Clemente.

per cent in the month ended Jan. 15. It was the third consecutive monthly decline. But Agricultural Department economists said food prices still will rise 15 per cent in the first half of the year because lower farm prices would be more than offset by middleman costs.

But there was further evidence of the severity of the slump in a government report on declining factory orders and rising backlogs of unsold goods.

The Commerce Department said factory orders for everything from scouring pads to refrigerators fell 8.7 per cent in the fourth consecutive monthly decline. At the same time, inventories rose 2 per cent.

THE two combine to signal even more layoffs of workers as industry cuts production to match lower demand and to clear out warehouse supplies.

The Ford Motor Co. said Friday it will idle 40,000 workers for one week starting Monday while calling back nearly 32,000 workers who were off the job this week.

The No. 2 automaker said it will suspend operations for one week at nine of its 14 passenger car plants, five of its nine truck plants and one of its 46 manufacturing plants, idling 31,675 workers, plus another 8,100 at eight manufacturing plants where work will be reduced.

In addition, another 400 workers will be placed on indefinite layoffs.

In other developments:

per cent in the month ended Jan. 15. It was the third consecutive monthly decline. But Agricultural Department economists said food prices still will rise 15 per cent in the first half of the year because lower farm prices would be more than offset by middleman costs.

—In Washington, President Ford called in Republican congressmen for a sales pitch on his economic and energy programs. He said he would meet with Southern governors next week. A consumer advocate branded Ford's proposals a "shell game," and the nation's mayors said help was needed to save cities from bankruptcy.

The pace on the New York Stock Exchange was brisk again Friday with 24.6 million shares being traded, closing out the busiest week in the market's 183-year history.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue chip stocks jumped 7.27 to 703.69. During January, the Dow soared 87.45 points, or 14.1 per cent, in the biggest January gain ever.

For the week, volume totaled 145.7 million shares, surpassing the 110,616,000 shares traded for the week of Feb. 8-12, 1971, the previous record.

Bank of America of San Francisco and First National City Bank of New York, the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 banks, lowered their prime rate to 9 1/4 per cent from 9 1/2 per cent. They declined to follow the lead of Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest, to 9 per cent.

Guard arrested in bomb threats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI arrested a security guard with the Federal Protection Service late Friday and charged him with making telephone bomb threats to at least three government buildings.

Donald W. Moore Jr., special agent in charge of the Washington field office of the FBI announced that special agents arrested Donald W. Gooding of nearby Hillside, Md., at 6:14 p.m. EST.

Gooding was on duty at the time, as an officer of the protection service at the Internal Revenue Service building on Constitution Avenue.

He was charged with telephoning false bomb threats against the J. Edgar Hoover building, which will house the FBI when completed, the IRS and the Justice Department.

At least eight or 10 other similar threats have been made since the early-morning bomb blast in a third-floor restroom at the State Department Wednesday, but the FBI would say only that the three named threats are the only ones Gooding was charged with.

The FBI said the protection service had cooperated fully with its investigation.

—MacDonald coworkers set up fund—
$100,000 bail frees doctor

Bail of $100,000 was posted in Los Angeles Friday to free Long Beach doctor Jeffrey MacDonald, the former Army Green Beret captain accused of killing his pregnant wife and two daughters five years ago.

MacDonald, arrested Jan. 24 following a federal grand jury indictment for the 1970 murders at Ft. Bragg, N.C., was freed Friday afternoon after bail was posted by several of his friends.

Marshall Kandell, director of community relations for St. Mary Medical Center where MacDonald is employed as head of emergency services, said he believed the bail was taken to Los Angeles by Dr. Paul Hildebrand, Hildebrand is assistant director of emergency services at the hospital.

Kandell said the $100,000 was raised through a fund set up by MacDonald's coworkers and that contributors included a former patient who put up $5,000.

The way for MacDonald's release was paved during a hearing Thursday before U.S. Magistrate John Kronenberg, who reduced the previously set half-million dollar bail to $100,000.

Kronenberg's decision for bail reduction was made despite a persuasive FBI presentation that attempted to prove Macdonald's guilt in the killings.

MacDonald, arrested by the Army shortly after the murders but later released following a lengthy investigation, has repeatedly said he was asleep in the family livingroom on Feb. 17, 1970, when he heard his wife, Collette, 26, and daughters, Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 2, calling for help.

He has testified that he saw four "hippie-type" characters in the house chanting "Acid is groovy... kill the pigs." MacDonald told investigators that he was stabbed numerous times in the chest with an ice pick before the intruders left, and he discovered his family beaten and stabbed to death in their beds.

Investigators, however, contend that MacDonald could have inflicted those wounds himself after he killed his wife and daughters in a fit of rage.

The case was reopened last fall at the request of MacDonald's former father-in-law, Alfred E. Kassab, of Stony Brook, N.Y. The subsequent investigation was the basis for last week's grand jury indictment on three counts of first-degree murder, officials said.

MacDonald, who came to Long Beach to rebuild his life shortly after an Snag hits ratified El Segundo oil pact

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Oil workers at Standard Oil of California's El Segundo refinery gave their overwhelming approval to a new two-year contract Friday, apparently ending a three-week-long strike at the plant.

But no sooner were the results announced than a snag developed over the men's return to work.

David Wolty, secretary-treasurer of Local 1-547 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, said it was not certain how the problem would be resolved.

Union and company officials apparently came away from the bargaining table with different interpretations of the back-to-work agreement.

The company's position is that it will call individual strikers back within the next seven days. But it will decide what day each man will return. (The plant employs 850 union members.)

Wolty, on the other hand, said the agreement called for the strikers to return at their own convenience, subject only to the seven-day deadline.

The local union chief said many workers were ready to return to work within the next day or two, and any delay would deprive them of valuable working time and pay. He said other workers, moreover, have temporarily left the area, and the company's plan would only make their scheduled return difficult. The contract ratified the settlement by a 96 per cent margin. It provides for the equivalent of a 27 per cent wage hike over two years.

The agreement represented a major contract settlement for the union, which has been trying to wrap up its negotiations with the oil industry for the past three weeks. Most of the country's major oil firms plus scores of smaller ones have signed contracts with the union similar to a pace-setting agreement reached with Gulf Oil Corp. Jan. 10. But Standard, until it reached a tentative agreement with the union Wednesday, was one of five important holdouts. The others were Shell, Union Oil, Continental and Sun Oil.

With the snag in the back-to-work arrangement, however, the Standard settlement now appears to be in some jeopardy.

Another difficulty arose Friday in the oil workers' talks with Union Oil, one of the two remaining large firms struck by the OCAW.

Union Oil officials had submitted a wage proposal to the union early Friday and attached a 4 p.m. deadline to it. OCAW officials were still reviewing the package when the deadline arrived. But precisely at 4, the company withdrew the offer. So Union Oil workers, including 500 at the company's Wilmington refinery, are still on strike.

Suit filed to halt Indo aid

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — A suit was filed by 21 House Democrats Friday to halt all U.S. supply airlifts, reconnaissance flights or any other direct U.S. military involvement in Cambodia. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Boston by aides of Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., chief plaintiff. It charges U.S. personnel are involved in aerial reconnaissance, intelligence, military advice including recommendations of targets and offshore maneuvers in defiance of Congress' prohibition of U.S. military involvement in the country. It asks the court to find the activity in violation of Congress' law and order it halted. Rob Pratt, an aide to Drinan, said the suit was filed in Boston because the court there has indicated in past rulings that it would declare U.S. military activity illegal if plaintiffs could prove it occurred and that it violated specific law.

Flu epidemic

ATLANTA — Pneumonia and influenza deaths in the U.S. exceeded the epidemic threshold for the third straight week, the National Center for Disease Control said Friday. While flu remained widespread in the Southeast and Midwest, it continued to decline in the Southeast, according to the CDC's weekly morbidity and mortality report. Increased influenza was reported in the West North Central region where Kansas listed absenteeism running as high as 50 per cent in some schools, and in the West South Central region. Outbreaks were also reported in five counties in Oregon.

INTERNATIONAL

French government shakeup

PARIS — President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing shook up his government Friday, firing the defense and postal ministers in a bid to restore discipline in the armed forces and stop recurrent, paralyzing mail strikes. The twin dismissal was part of the first cabinet reshuffle since Giscard d'Estaing's election eight months ago. Government officials said its main aim was to restore the cabinet's cohesion and improve its public image. In the most important single change Yvon Bourges, 54, an orthodox Gaullist, became the new defense minister replacing Jacques Soufflet. Soufflet's ouster had long been predicted by the press. He has been openly blamed for repeated outbursts of discontent and street agitation by servicemen protesting low pay, bad housing conditions and alleged frequent harsh treatment from their commands. To show his concern over discontent in the ranks of the 489,000-member armed forces, Giscard d'Estaing named Gen. Marcel Bigeard, 57, a battle-hardened veteran of colonial wars, to a newly created post of defense secretary in charge of the "soldiers' condition."

Raw material strategy

PARIS — Representatives of about 110 nations in Africa, Asia and Latin America that produce the bulk of the world's raw materials will meet in Senegal next week to work out common strategy on trade relations with the West, diplomatic sources said Friday. Senegalese President Leopold Sedar Senghor, who will inaugurate the Feb. 3-8 conference in Dakar, has hailed the meeting as "a new step towards the creation of a new world economic order." Sources said the importance of the conference has been increased by the recent slump in the export prices of many basic raw materials which, accelerated by the Western economic recession, has bitten deeply into vitally needed earnings of the developing countries.

Campaign sentence

WASHINGTON — Former Montana Gov. Tim Babcock was sentenced Friday to serve four months in jail and fined $1,000 for concealing the source of a $54,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign. The money was contributed by wealthy oilman Armand Hammer, who remains under investigation by the Special Watergate Prosecutor's Office. Chief U.S. District Judge George Hart Jr. formally sentenced Babcock to the full one-year maximum, but said the former governor must actually spend only four months in prison and two years probation. Babcock pleaded guilty Dec. 10, 1974 to listing five persons, including himself, as the donors instead of Hammer, chairman of the Occidental Petroleum Corp.

Campaign settlement

WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission announced Friday that three directors of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. have agreed to pay $425,000 to settle SEC allegations of illegal campaign contributions. The SEC cited former company President Bert S. Cross, current President Harry Heltzer and former Vice President Irwin R. Hansen as part of a complaint contending that $634,000 was falsely recorded as insurance and legal expenses in 3M's books. Actually, $498,000 of the money was used for political contributions, the SEC alleged. The same charges were part of a grand jury indictment handed down a week ago against the company, naming Cross and Hansen on income tax charges.

Pilots refuse to fly

ISTANBUL, Turkey — Turkish Airlines pilots walked off the job Friday demanding better safety precautions after one of their planes crashed into the sea during a citywide power blackout. The crash apparently killed all 41 persons aboard, including an American. The pilots vowed to remain on the ground until their demands were met. The action forced Turkish Airlines to cancel all its flights. The plane crashed into the Marmara Sea on Thursday night. Cause was not immediately determined but officials theorized that a power failure in Istanbul, which also affected the airport, played a part in it. Electricity went off at the airport as the plane was about to land on a flight from Izmir. The pilot, apparently afraid of crashing into the terminal building in the dark, took off again, probably to circle the airport until electricity was restored, officials said. But shortly afterward the control tower lost contact with the plane.

Insurgency showdown

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — Waves of Eritrean insurgents using mortars and bazookas attacked three Ethiopian military installations for two hours Friday night in the provincial capital of Asmara, reports reaching Addis Ababa said. There was no immediate casualty report. The assault was a major escalation of the Eritrean insurgents' 12-year war for independence. Observers said it could be the start of a long-expected showdown between the five-month-old military government in Addis Ababa and rebels of the Eritrean Liberation Front and the Popular Liberation Front. More than 30 Americans — including children — who had been watching movies at a social club in the U.S. sector, huddled in the club as machine gun fire and grenade explosions rocked the base, a witness reported.

Brando joins talks with holed up Indians

Combined News Services

Actor Marlon Brando joined talks with armed Indians holed up in an abandoned abbey Friday and said owners of the building were ready to make a new offer aimed at ending the month-long occupation.

Brando arrived shortly before the passing of a new deadline for members of the Menominee Warrior Society to accept or reject a proposal by the Alexian Brothers to lease and then buy their 64-room building in Gresham, Wis.

Brando, who has been active in the past in Indian affairs, said the Roman Catholic religious order was going to make a new offer.

He said money may be available to the Indians, who want the abbey converted into a medical facility for their tribe.

Brando, state mediator Artley Skenandore, members of the Menominee People's Committee, which supports the militants, and several others entered the novitiate shortly before noon to talk to the Indians.

Fined

A newspaper publisher, an editor and a reporter were fined a total of $6,750 Friday in the Ontario Supreme Court in Windsor for printing testimony from a court hearing that a judge had banned for publication.

J. P. O'Callaghan, publisher of the Southam Press Star of Ontario; Star Editor Robert M. Pearson, and Michael John Frezell, a reporter, were found guilty Jan. 24 of the charges stemming from a preliminary hearing of a murder case.

News media had been instructed by the hearing judge to publish only the decision and not the testimony in the preliminary hearing into charges against Jan Zaborek, 49, who was subsequently convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison.

S. Bolling Wright, perhaps the best known foreign-born resident in Mexico City, is dead at the age of 89.

Wright, a retired industrialist and noted philanthropist, died Thursday after a heart attack. He died in the American-British Cowdray hospital, to which he donated land after helping create the hospital. He was buried in American Cemetery which is administered by the American Benevolent Society of which he was a founding member.

Duke

The Duke of Norfolk, meticulous mastermind of the Ascot races and other British pageantry, died in his sleep Thursday night at his 11,000-acre estate in Sussex. He was 66 and had been in poor health since suffering a heart attack in 1970.

In public, England's premier duke and earl marshal was a shy, withdrawn man who answered news conference questions abruptly. But he managed the 1962 English cricket tour of Australia and beamed with pleasure when Australians addressed him as "dukey."

The duke, a stocky, red-faced man with white hair and drooping eyelids in an expressionless face, was once asked in a newspaper interview how he felt about work. "It has never appealed to me," he replied.

Mark Lane, an outspoken critic of the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing President John F. Kennedy, Friday characterized that report as the biggest cover-up in history.

Supervisor invites press to quiz

Pitchess says Ward trying to thwart probe Pendleton beach

Our L.A. Bureau Sheriff Peter Pitchess charged Friday that Supervisor Baxter Ward was trying to thwart a criminal investigation into the possible theft or unauthorized removal of official county documents.

According to a sheriff's spokesman, investigators in the Sheriff's Department about a month ago arranged to interview three members of Ward's staff — Lance Brisson, Jonathan Beatty and Scott Hoffman — in connection with the document investigation.

The spokesman said the interview was scheduled for Monday and that when Ward heard about it he asked to be present. The sheriff agreed to Ward's request, the spokesman said.

ON FRIDAY Ward released to the press a memo to Pitchess in which he stated he was "inviting the press to sit in on the meeting."

The sheriff immediately replied that "criminal investigations and interrogations are not conducted in an open forum, for obvious reasons. To proceed otherwise could prejudice any possible future criminal prosecution."

The letter to Ward said, "Your position as an elected public official mandates cooperation in criminal investigations, and should preclude any effort on your part to obstruct their progress."

Ward later replied to the sheriff, saying the inquiry involved efforts to question his staff, "presumably as to the sources of our information about budget matters in the Sheriff's Department."

Members of my staff are fully prepared to answer all questions — other than those relating to sources — and with that exception are not taking refuge in any right to remain silent," Ward said. "Rather, they want these responses fully recorded for the record, and I agree that opening such a session to the press is the proper means of accomplishing this."

WARD TOLD the sheriff, "I must advise you that members of my staff will not disclose to your investigators the sources of information beyond what has already been revealed."

Ward said his people would still be available at 10:30 a.m. Monday and that the investigators were "welcome to come if they so choose." But, he added, "the invitation to the press remains open, and if you and your officers decide not to be present, then the matter is closed."

The sheriff's spokesman said under no circumstances would the investigators conduct the meeting in the presence of the press.

However, he said, the investigation would continue even without the statements of Ward's staff members.

Maneuvers close

Surfers, surf fishermen and campers who favor the usually deserted beaches in and around Camp Pendleton near Oceanside will have to stay clear of the area until Feb. 6, the Marine Corps announced Friday.

Officials said the usually quiet beaches are to be used in "Operation Bead Stream," a training exercise which began last Monday.

Nine Navy ships, carrying 1,500 marines and 4,500 navy men, are involved in the exercise. Amphibious vehicles and helicopters also are being used in the training operation, which is to include an amphibious assault from the waters off Camp Pendleton.

Marine officials said civilians will be warned to steer clear of the area until the exercise is completed.

Tax sale

I own some property jointly with my sister and I want to sell it. The California Board of Equalization has had a lien on it since 1969 because of my sister's failure to pay sales tax when she owned a business. She can't afford to pay this debt. Can the state sell the property at public auction? If so, would the state be required to notify me of an impending auction? How long will the state wait before selling it? E.B., Cerritos.

Under the Sales and Use Tax Law, the Board of Equalization is empowered to sell the property at public auction, but the board rarely does this and it won't sell a person's home to collect a sales tax debt, said Sidney Katz, a spokesman for the board. If the property is unimproved and the amount due is large, the board may auction off the property, but it first must notify the owner and give him 10 days to pay off the debt. If a property is sold at auction, the state would collect only the amount due plus interest with the remainder of the proceeds going to the former owner of the property or the holder of the first trust deed if the mortgage hasn't been paid off. The real purpose of the lien is simply to protect the state's right to the eventual collection of the back taxes, and the lien will remain in force until the debt is paid, Katz said.

Horse sease

Why does the Los Angeles Department of Animal Regulation require a $6 license fee for horses stored within the city limits? It costs an owner about $50 to get his stray horse released after it has been impounded, so why do we have to pay the license fee as well? L.H., Paramount.

The license fee for horses was instituted three years ago because the Los Angeles City Council decided that horse owners weren't bearing their fair share of the city's expenses for picking up and caring for animals that have gone astray, said Lawrence Batterman, chief of the license enforcement division. The number of calls to pick up stray horses, especially in the San Fernando Valley area, was so numerous in 1972 that the council decided the impound fees alone didn't bring in enough revenue to meet the expense of a horse trailer and the two animal control officers need to pick up a stray horse, he added. Batterman said the fee for the release of an impounded horse is $25 plus a $3-a-day feed and care charge. The original license fee was $10, but it was reduced to $6 in 1973.

Liability

In August 1973 I gave my car to a close friend and sent a transfer of ownership form to the California Department of Motor Vehicles. A few days later, my uncle, who was co-owner of the car since I was a minor at the time, received a letter from the DMV and a new transfer form because he had signed on the wrong line on the original form. He completed the paper work right away and sent the form back. He threw away the letter from the DMV. My friend never received a new pink slip on the car from the DMV. The following Nov. 11, the car, while being driven by my friend's boyfriend, was involved in an accident. He agreed to pay for the damages to the other party's car in installments. He subsequently defaulted on his payments, and now my uncle and I are being sued for $1,012 as the legal owners of the automobile. I've been to the local DMV, but they refused to look up the records on the car. Can Action Line help me prove that I gave the car away before the accident? F.M., Long Beach.

No. At Action Line's request, the staff at the DMV headquarters in Sacramento searched through the records on the car, but the only change of registration document they turned up was a transfer of interest form signed by you and dated Nov. 16, 1973. Consequently, the DMV views your uncle as the legal owner of the car at the time of the accident.

Claim

I am totally disabled and in August, on the advice of my doctors, I applied for Social Security disability benefits. My claim was turned down and I was advised to apply for Supplemental Security Income benefits. I've had no word on that claim and when I phoned about it I was told that several thousand cases have been lost. Can you find out what happened to my claim? Mrs. C.L.W., Downey.

Your SSI claim was turned down too on the basis that your disability isn't severe enough, but you can appeal the decision, according to a Social Security Administration official in the Huntington Park office. He said he'd write a letter telling you of your right to appeal and would offer to help you do so if you need help. He said your SSI claim was rejected also on the basis that your monthly income exceeds the minimum $255 allowed. He said you should have been notified by mail of the denial. There is no truth in the story about the lost cases, he said. "To my knowledge, there's been no mass loss of files."

Their bag

We bought a couple of beanbag chairs last year and our son ripped a hole in one of them. We've tried for six months to get it repaired, but no one seems to do this type of work. Can Action Line help us? G.A., Long Beach.

The Acme Mattress Factory, 3425 E. Anaheim St., does repair work on beanbag chairs, according to Fred Boles, a spokesman for the company.

Pentagon halts MIRV arming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has temporarily suspended installation of multiple warhead intercontinental ballistic missiles, apparently because of an unresolved issue in U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms limitation negotiations.

The Air Force confirmed the halt Friday, but declined to say why the action was taken.

Involved are the last 50 Minuteman ICBMs to be converted from single warhead models to an advanced version carrying multiple independently targetable warheads (MIRVs).

The Air Force already has converted 500 of its 1,000 Minutemen missiles to MIRVs.

Although Pentagon officials refused to discuss the reasons, other administration sources indicated it had to do with the question of how to verify compliance with the Vladivostok agreement restricting both the U.S. and the Soviet Union each to a total of 1,320 MIRV-carrying missiles in land bases and aboard missile-firing submarines.

Verification is one of the remaining issues to be resolved during negotiations which resumed this week in Geneva, looking to completing details of the agreement for a formal signing in the spring or summer.

After the Vladivostok meeting last November, U.S. officials said the Russians had been told the U.S. feels all launch silos modified to hold MIRV type missiles should be counted automatically against the 1,320 limit. Missile silo modification is monitored by spy satellites.

The Soviet position on this issue is not known but administration officials reportedly are concerned that going ahead with conversion of the 50 Minutemen at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Montana, to MIRVs, might be misinterpreted by the Russians.

State Department informs Congress $25 million Syria aid plan

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN

WASHINGTON — The State Department has quietly informed Congress that it intends to grant $25 million to Syria from a special Middle East contingency fund as an incentive for the Syrians to pursue a moderate course in the area.

Although the sum is relatively small, the Ford administration has attached importance to the first American economic aid to Syria since 1965, except for food assistance. It has vigorously lobbied on Capitol Hill in the last week to persuade key members of Congress not to block the grant.

Under a special provision in the Foreign Aid

Threat to NATO seen Russ ask Lisbon for fishing fleet base

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Kremlin, in its first overt bid to take advantage of the leftward course of Portugal's government, has asked this NATO country to make a seaport available to the Soviet Atlantic fishing fleet, official sources said Friday.

There was no immediate comment from the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow or the State Department in Washington.

If the port facility is granted, it would mean that Soviet trawlers with sophisticated spying equipment would be based about 150 miles from NATO's Iberian Atlantic Naval Command. The command has responsibility for the security of the approaches to the Gibraltar Strait, gateway to the Middle East.

Portugal was rocked by a military coup last April that unseated the dictatorial regime of Premier Marcello Caetano. Since that time the Communists have been pushing hard for power.

Premier Vasco Goncalves, identified with the radical wing of the armed forces, was reported in favor of granting the Soviet request, but others in the government were said to be urging caution. President Francisco da Costa Gomes, who met with President Ford in Washington last fall, said on his return to Lisbon that Portugal was still committed to remaining in the Western camp.

Portugal is of considerable strategic importance to the United States, which maintains an air base at Lajes in the Portuguese Azores. A NATO naval maneuver has been under way since Wednesday under the command of Iberian Atlantic headquarters. The exercise called "Locked Gate 75," involves 35 warships from six NATO countries in a mock hunt for Warsaw Pact submarines along the approaches to Gibraltar.

Maoists took to the streets of Lisbon on Friday to protest the NATO maneuver as well as to demonstrate against the Soviets, but the government deployed soldiers to block the march, which was banned on Thursday.

The sources who reported the Kremlin proposal gave this account: The Soviets are interested in using facilities at Figueira da Foz, a fishing port at the mouth of the Mondego River about 150 miles up the Atlantic seaboard from Lisbon. NATO's Iberian Atlantic Command is just outside Lisbon.

The Soviets made the request last week when the Portuguese Communist Party had just emerged victorious from a Cabinet debate over a labor bill that favored Communist control of Portugal's unions.

The Soviet timing may have been based on the Kremlin's assessment of Communist strength in Portugal. Soviet diplomats are pressing the Portuguese government for a quick decision and have already prepared a draft agreement.

They want their proposal presented to the secretary of state for fisheries through an interministerial committee created to deal with Soviet-Portuguese relations. The committee reports directly to Goncalves. One of the group's senior members is Alvaro Cunhal, head of Portugal's Communist Party.

The Soviet proposal so far has not been presented to the Cabinet for consideration, but a bitter debate is expected when it is.

Kissinger plans Cyprus parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has tentative plans to meet Greek and Turkish leaders about Feb. 10 in Europe in an urgent effort to reach a Cyprus settlement, U.S. officials said Friday.

They said the latest talks between leaders of the Greek and Turkish communities Friday on Cyprus had made no progress and Kissinger thinks his personal intervention is needed with Greek Foreign Minister Demetri Betsios and his Turkish counterpart, Milah Esenbel.

The talks with the foreign ministers would take place at the start of Kissinger's trip to the Middle East. A place has not been set, but London and Paris are possibilities. Greece, Turkey and Cyprus have been ruled out.

PLANS for a meeting with Betsios and Esenbel were leaked as Kissinger faced an increasingly bleak chance of convincing Congress to remove a Wednesday deadline on ending all American arms aid to Turkey.

The cutoff was set last December as a sign of disapproval of Turkey's use of U.S. military equipment in its invasion of Cyprus.

The only way now available for removing the deadline is for President Ford to make two declarations: that substantial progress has been made toward a Cyprus settlement and that Turkey is complying with requirements that all American-provided military equipment be withdrawn from the island.

The Kissinger meeting plans were disclosed as Turkish troops and Greek Cypriot soldiers exchanged heavy gunfire near the American-owned Skouriotissa copper mines in west Cyprus.

Unofficial reports from Greek Cypriot witnesses said the shooting, which included heavy machine-guns and mortar fire, lasted right or opportunity to emigrate.

The purpose of the amendment was to seek relief for the approximately 4,000 Jews living in Syria, but the language of the bill did not compel the administration to link the aid to emigration.

In the last week, top State Department officials have been urging members of Congress not to raise the question of Syrian Jews as an issue for fear that this might worsen their situation.

The department has been stressing that through "quiet diplomacy" and further aid to Syria, more could be done for the Jews than by attaching conditions to the aid.

For the moment, Bingham and others have decided that with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger about to visit the Middle East again, they will not object to the aid of Syria.

The Foreign Aid Act authorized a contingency fund of $100 million to the Middle East, without naming the recipient, but it has always understood that Syria was the prime candidate. So far only a fourth of the $100 million has been appropriated.

Syria is also expected to receive the other $75 million when that is appropriated.

Russ agree to clear mines from approaches to Suez

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has agreed at Egypt's request to clear mines from the Mediterranean approaches to Port Said, Tass said Friday.

The report by the official news agency would indicate the Soviets are maintaining a toehold in Egypt's postwar reconstruction despite evidence of a current coolness in the on-again-off-again friendship between Moscow and Cairo.

The announcement came on the eve of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's departure for the Middle East on what is primarily stated as a patch-up mission to Cairo.

In Cairo, the newspaper Akhbar El Youm reported today that Gromyko's trip was to prepare for a visit earlier minesweeping operations with the United States and Britain but was not involved with actual canal itself.

Gromyko was due in Damascus over the weekend and in Cairo on Monday.

President Anwar Sadat has insisted he wants to improve ties with Moscow.

Pilots starting air embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pilots embarguing hazardous cargo from passenger planes effective beginning today said Friday they would delay flights if necessary to have it removed.

United Air Lines, the nation's largest domestic air carrier, said it would ban nonmedical radioactive shipments for a month but continue to carry other cargo the pilots consider hazardous.

"There may well be delays because the pilots are sure going to have it removed," said a spokesman for the 32,000-member Air Line Pilots Association.

The association said its members would refuse to fly any plane loaded with hazardous material other than radioactive pharmaceuticals, dry ice or properly packaged magnetic materials.

The ban applies to all domestic passenger flights except those conducted by American Airlines and to all international passenger flights conducted by U.S. airlines.

AMERICAN AIRLINES pilots are represented by a different union, the Allied Pilots Association. A spokesman for American said that carrier will continue to accept shipments of hazardous materials for passenger flights if the shipments are packaged in accordance with American's regulations.

ALPA President John J. O'Donnell said the action was being taken because ALPA had been unable to get the federal government to tighten up regulations on air transportation of hazardous materials. He noted ALPA has been objecting to the government's regulations for more than 10 years.

O'Donnell said the Department of Transportation had offered a compromise in hopes of averting the embargo but that offer was "totally unacceptable."

Asked if pilots had the authority to ban the hazardous cargo, O'Donnell said federal regulations make the pilot responsible for the safety of his airplane. He noted that pilots have refused in the past to fly planes unless the airline removes drunk passengers and said this action was similar.

"WE ARE NOT REFUSING to fly the aircraft — we are just telling the carrier to remove the hazardous cargo," O'Donnell said. He stressed that the action was not a strike but an embargo.

ALPA announced the ban more than two months ago but set a Feb. 1 starting date in hopes the federal government would take action to remove the hazardous materials.

The union said it would consider collective action against any airline that attempts to discipline a pilot for refusing to fly an aircraft loaded with hazardous cargo.

The ban will apply to some 1,400 varieties of explosives, acids, gases, flammables, bacteriological agents and other materials classified by the Department of Transportation as hazardous.

Controller tells of crash crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The flight controller for Trans World Airlines Flight 514 told a crash inquiry Friday that responsibilities are being piled upon him and his colleagues and that there are limits to what he knows and what he can and should do.

In a marathon, mostly technical testimony, controller Merle Dameron, 51, also provided a glimpse of his feelings at the moment he discovered the Dec. 1 crash had killed all 92 aboard the passenger jet.

"It frightened me," Dameron recalled of the instant he noticed that the blip of 514 had vanished from the radar scope before him.

"Increasingly," Dameron said, "the responsibility for the complete safe conduct of aircraft is being transferred to the controller ... How much can be done?"

DAMERON controlled four aircraft in the few minutes Flight 514 came onto his scope and left it.

NBC offers GOP prime time slot

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBC television network Friday offered to sell the Republican Party a half hour of prime time this coming summer to help it polish its image.

The time slot allotted was 10:30 to 11 p.m. July 1, and an NBC spokesman said the cost would be between $90,000 and $100,000.

The GOP had asked each of the three major networks to sell it one half hour of prime time in May, June and July.

The CBS network denied the time on the ground that it had a policy of selling air time for political broadcasts only to political candidates. The ABC network has yet to reply.

crashing into Mt. Weather west of Dulles International Airport here.

Dameron said his radar, common in federal aviation-control facilities across the country, is not engineered to be continuously reliable in monitoring an aircraft's altitude.

He said he was unaware of the turbulence which pilots on his scope were experiencing as they battled a blustery rainstorm on their way to make a landing.

Pilots and TWA lawyers at the inquiry of the National Transportation Safety Board are quarreling with the controllers' interpretation of federal procedures. These rules have been made more specific for Dulles since the crash.

It is the pilots' contention in the inquiry that in the bad weather conditions of Dec. 1 the controllers were responsible for keeping the pilot of 514 informed of his altitude.

But Dameron said his duty to 514 was only to keep it separated from other aircraft in the same line to land at Dulles, and that he was not obligated to keep the pilot informed of his altitude.

WHEN HE did notice 514's dangerously low altitude, he said, he couldn't believe it. He said he tried to warn 514 by radio but got no answer.

The TWA pilot had taken Dameron's clearance to approach Dulles for landing as permission to start down while still over the mountains.

The fatal misunderstanding in the crash was etched in the final exchange between Dameron and Lou McNair, a Delta Airlines captain, who concluded interregation of the controller.

McNair asked: "Prior to this accident were you aware of the confusion existing between pilots and controllers as to what 'cleared for approach' means?"

Dameron: "No, sir, not that I recall."

McNair: "If you had been made aware of any confusion would this have been helpful in your duties as a controller?"

Dameron: "Yes, I would say that certainly is a fair assumption."

Ford energy policies ripped

By GIL BAILEY
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors James Hayes, speaking for the National Association of Counties, said Friday President Ford's energy policies would hurt the poor without really conserving energy.

"I am here to tell you that President Ford's energy program will severely cripple county governments and will impose extreme hardships on the citizens of counties like Los Angeles who have little or no public transportation systems," Hayes told the Senate Commerce Committee.

He pointed out that in some areas of the country utility bills are much higher than in Los Angeles County.

"WHEN you consider the impact of the President's program on the people in these areas, you are now talking about increases in the thousands of dollars," Hayes said.

Instead of the President's program, Hayes called for mandatory allocation of funds to the various regions of the nation based on regional need.

Instead Hayes proposed his own energy program, which includes limitations on oil imports, an allocation system for energy users and development of new energy systems.

The Los Angeles County supervisor served as a member of the Project Independence Advisory Committee, and he currently heads the energy committee of the National Association of Counties.

HAYES estimated that the total Ford energy program would cost the average Los Angeles County family $284 per year while the income tax rebate would only provide $250 a year. For county government, he estimated the energy package would cost $6,602,000 for energy alone, much more than the county would receive in added revenue sharing.

"The plain and simple fact is that our citizens will absolutely have to continue to use the automobile regardless of what price is placed on gasoline," he said. The wealthy and affluent will be able to afford it so that it will "not cut consumption."

Hayes emphasized, "The poor will have to buy gasoline and most likely will go without other necessities of life such as food and clothing."

GOVERNOR GETS A HAND as he pays surprise visit to YMCA model legislature in State Capitol after earlier declaring he was too busy for traditional appearance.

Brown not too busy, after all, to visit teen-age legislature

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Brown dropped in on the YMCA model legislature late Friday after his office had said earlier in the day that he was too busy to address the group.

Brown declined an invitation to speak at a morning meeting of the YMCA's 27th annual event. But later he told an afternoon news conference he would try to meet with the youths.

Immediately after the news conference, he met briefly with some of the leaders of the teen-age event that drew about 800 youths and decided to visit them.

"I'm putting in a 15-hour day, and where I can squeeze in ceremonial visits...I'll do it the best I can. And if my calendar today permits, I'll meet with this group," he told the news conference called for the signing of a Medi-Cal contract.

bly sessions held in legislative committee rooms.

"I felt my inaugural address — which was eight minutes long — should be my longest speech this year," he said as he asked for questions.

The students asked him about lowering the drinking age, mass transit, the Equal Rights Amendment, his medium-sized official car and youth in government.

BROWN DID say he would try to hold the line on tuition and fees at state-supported colleges and universities.

"We're going to try to hold the line on it...I will work against increases," he said, but he rejected a suggestion that tuition should be abolished.

An editorial cartoon printed by the teen-age staff of the model legislature's newspaper showed Brown ducking away from a podium. The caption said:

"And for our next speaker, we have the honorable Governor Brown—er, Governor Brown?"

"If he had just walked in the door and said, 'Hello, welcome to Sacramento,' and left, a lot of us would be satisfied," said Bob Moore, a leader of the group from Ventura High School, before Brown spoke. "We realize he is a busy man."

Moore's comment after Brown spoke was: "Isn't this great?"

Secretary of State March Fong Eu spoke in Brown's place at the morning session.

Brown OKs dental care cuts for poor

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The administration of Gov. Brown has agreed to cuts in dental care for California's poor in an effort to hold rising state costs on line.

Brown told a Capitol news conference that the new $67 million contract with California Dental Services means sacrifice for the dentists as well as for the state's 2.3 million Medi-Cal recipients.

"THE DENTAL profession has agreed to no increase in fees for this calendar year," he said after the contract was signed. "In addition, we have asked that those served in the program sacrifice, to lower their expectations."

"We have deleted certain services that existed in the present contract," Brown added.

Brown said the dentists are taking a cut in their fees since the costs in the medical field are rising at 15 to 20 per cent a year.

"California's Dentist are setting an example for the state in their willingness to make a sacrifice for public welfare," said Mario Obledo, Brown's Health and Welfare Secretary who signed the contract.

Among the cutbacks Brown approved are teeth cleaning only once a year instead of twice a year, no cleaning and fluoride treatment for children under age 6, and no full mouth X-rays for children under 13 years of age.

ASKED IF these were essential services, Brown replied:

"We're redefining what's essential."

Dr. Gene Dixon, CDS executive vice president, said that the deleted services are "less essential," adding that once a year cleaning is the minimal dental attention needed.

Dixon said that the contract is actually $5 million above the current state contract with CDS. But he claimed that CDS actually spent $69 million in 1974 to provide the dental care — losing $7 million on the contract.

The state pays CDS a set fee — under the new contract $2.48 a month — for each Medi-Cal recipient.

A Medi-Cal recipient goes for dental care to almost any dentist in the state, who then bills CDS for the services performed. CDS then reimburses the dentist.

BROWN said that news stories saying dental care for Medi-Cal recipients had stopped during January as negotiations proceeded on the contract were an outgrowth of "negotiating postures."

But he said: "My concern is to redefine people's expectation of what they are going to receive from government and what they're not going to receive...Whether someone postpones going to the dentist for a month or a week...that's just all part of the re-examination of how often people should go or not go."

Resort cabins won't be razed

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (AP)—The U. S. Forest Service said Friday it is no longer considering a plan to burn down obsolete cabins at the historic Meeks Bay Resort in the Lake Tahoe Basin.

Spokesman Dick Pine said the Forest Service had explored ways to get rid of the old cabins on the property because it would cost $250,000 to bring them up to safe standards.

Nader tells consumers to form cooperatives

By LOUISE COOK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader told consumers Friday they must do more to help themselves in the marketplace and in the courts, instead of relying on government action and agencies.

Addressing delegates to the annual conference of the Consumer Federation of America, Nader said the consumer movement "is suffering from a lack of theory about power."

He called for economic self-government as well as political self-government and urged consumers to form cooperatives to buy and sell everything from food to auto insurance.

NADER proposed legislation to establish a bank to help fund such consumer co-ops. He said the initial capital should come from the federal government, which would be repaid by subscribers during the coming years.

Nader, a consumer advocate, found a receptive audience in the delegates to the two-day conference. Speakers at the opening conference sessions on Thursday called for farmers and consumers to unite against big business and were critical of President Ford's energy and economic programs.

Friday morning, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb, told the consumers, "I'm not going to try and sell you on that (Ford's energy program)."

He urged the delegates to study all the alternatives before reaching any conclusions and warned that no matter what sort of program is adopted, energy conservation "has a price tag ... in economic effects ... with respect to inequities of one sort or another."

REP. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said that Ford's plan failed to recognize "the unavoidable necessity of embracing energy conservation as a positive, powerful, central principle of energy policy."

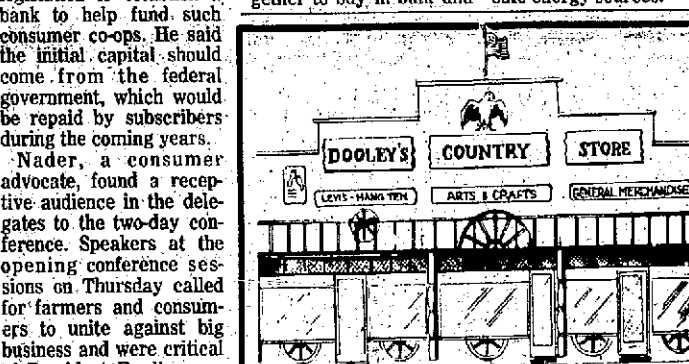

Udall, who has announced his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, called for gasoline rationing and oil allocation rather than price increases as a means of cutting consumption.

He said any successful energy program must recognize the difference between energy used for necessities like heating homes and running factories and energy used for luxuries.

Nader said politicians have been giving "massive lip service" to the consumer cause without "commensurate recognition of consumer remedies."

He cited several areas in which consumers can help themselves:

—Through lawsuits against industry and government. He called for legislation to make it easier for consumers to file class action suits and for individuals to act against "any violative behavior by any government agency or government official."

Cities ask $16 billion relief to prevent riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's mayors asked for $16 billion Friday in emergency relief from the crunch of inflation and recession. One predicted rioting unless help is forthcoming.

The relief was part of a nine-point economic recovery plan unveiled by the U.S. Conference of Mayors at a midwinter meeting of its leadership.

The plan includes congressional and administrative proposals and features an immediate $5 billion emergency shot for rapidly deteriorating local economies.

In unveiling the plan, Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco, president of the conference, accused national Democrats and Republicans of playing politics in the face of a national emergency.

MAYOR Henry Maier of Milwaukee predicted urban rioting worse than the bloody disruptions of the 1960s unless the problem is met.

"There are some very conservative businessmen, not just mayors talking, who predict there is going to be blood in the streets of the cities," Maier said. "It would make the riots of the 1960s look like a Fourth of July demonstration."

Alioto said minor rioting already had occurred in several cities as long lines of applicants competed for public-service jobs. He also noted that Los Angeles is training its police to handle possible food riots and that there are plans for a march on Washington by 250,000 auto workers in the spring.

"YOU CAN make any inference you want from these three facts," Alioto said. "But they are facts."

The mayors' program calls for:

—A $5 billion emergency fund for local government this year to pay for damages caused by inflation and higher energy costs, and another $5 billion next year if the economy fails to recover.

—A $1 billion increase in Economic Development Administration money for public works, business loans and grants, and economic-adjustment assistance to distressed city economies.

—A two-year, $3 billion program concentrating on use of labor for rehabilitating current urban facilities, as opposed to new construction.

—More mortgage money and construction of urban multifamily housing.

—An additional $5 billion for public service jobs.

—A $650 million addition to the summer youth job program.

EPA asks new jet noise rules

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Environmental Protection Agency Friday proposed new rules to quiet the noise from jet airliners at a cost of $880 million to the industry.

The agency suggested that consumers eventually foot the bill for the project through a tax on airline tickets which it said would work out to less than $2 per ticket for a period of from six to nine years.

EPA proposed the rules under the Noise Control Act of 1972 and submitted them to the Federal Aviation Administration, which will be in charge of issuing any final regulations on the subject. The FAA last March proposed regulations similar to the new EPA proposal but has not made them final.

The EPA proposal would require about 1,800 older jet planes in commercial service to be fitted with noise-muffling engine housings. Newer planes such as the Douglas DC10, Boeing 747 and Lockheed 1011 are generally quieter than earlier jets and would not have to be altered.

UNDER the proposal, at least half the engines in an airline fleet would have to meet the FAA noise level requirements after June 30, 1976. Principally affected would be planes such as the Boeing 707 and Douglas DC8.

After June 30, 1978, the EPA said, all engines would have to meet the requirements.

Also affected would be the fleet of privately owned business jets, estimated to number 650, which the EPA said would cost $300 million to retrofit.

EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said "the most significant relief will be provided to the approximately 1.5 million Americans residing or working near flight paths, because they are subjected to the most severe levels of jet noise."

The agency estimated that in all about 16 million Americans are subjected adversely to some level of aircraft noise.

TWO SHIPS BURN out of control in Delaware River near Philadelphia after chemical-laden vessel rammed oil tanker, setting off a dozen explosions and causing many casualties from fire, smoke, fumes.

—AP Wirephoto

27 lost in fiery ship collision

MARCUS HOOK, Pa. (AP)—A tanker unloading 17 million gallons of crude oil at a Delaware River refinery early Friday was rammed by a ship laden with chemicals, setting off more than a dozen explosions that shot flames 400 feet into the air and killed at least two persons.

Fire, smoke and noxious fumes injured 35, including 12 firemen.

Twenty-five of the 46 believed aboard the burning tanker Corinthos were unaccounted for.

It was not immediately known whether some of the missing, among them the captain, Gostas Marinis; his wife, son and sister, may have been on shore leave.

By Friday evening explosions throughout the day had split the rammed vessel amidships and poured oil slicks, some the size of a city block, into the river.

"IT WAS the inside of hell," said policeman George Hansell, among the first at the scene after the 754-foot Corinthos was struck broadside by the Edgar M. Queeny, an American ship apparently attempting to make a steering change near the BP Oil Corp. dock.

"It failed and collided," said Harry Schaefer, general superintendent for BP, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Ohio. He said some 300,000 barrels of Algerian oil — about 12 million gallons — were still in the Corinthos' hold when it exploded.

Flames shot 400 feet into the air, smoke and noxious fumes covered an area about the size of a football field, and thousands of gallons of burning oil spilled into the river.

The Coast Guard moved in with a pollution strike crew to contain the spill. Glass in windows and doors of hundreds of homes and other buildings was shattered by the blasts. About 350 families were evacuated to neighboring communities from this refinery town of 3,500 located 10 miles south of Philadelphia.

The Coast Guard ordered a marine board of inquiry to convene Tuesday to investigate the collision. The river was closed to ship traffic as the Corinthos continued to burn and spilled oil continued to ignite.

There were no reports of injuries to the crew of the 660-foot Queeny. It was carrying phenol gas and other chemicals, some of which had just been picked up from a Monsanto Co. plant across the river in New Jersey.

FIRST reports had indicated that fumes leaking from the Queeny had overcome fire fighters and other rescue workers, but officials later said the reports were untrue.

The Corinthos, registered in Liberia and carrying a predominantly Greek crew, shook violently in the explosions. Its bow settled into the mud, and the stern and midsection blazed.

"God knows how long it will take to burn itself out," Schaefer said.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the fire would be allowed to burn until all the crude oil aboard the ship was consumed. Federal Environmental Protection Agency officials said there appeared to be no major river-pollution danger but that the situation would be carefully monitored.

Kaiser strike 'unavoidable'

Associated Press

The AFL-CIO agreed Friday to sanction a strike against Kaiser Permanente Hospitals and clinics and a vice president of the Hospital and Service Employees Union Local 399 said he saw "no way to avoid a strike now."

A spokesman for Local 399 said the union was prepared to strike the medical care facilities at 6 a.m. Monday but was awaiting final results of a strike vote by members.

Sigmund Arywitz, executive secretary-treasurer of the Los Angeles County AFL-CIO, said the AFL-CIO would ask every union to honor the strike if it occurred.

The strike could interrupt medical care for 1.1 million members of Kaiser Permanente at five Southern California hospitals and 14 clinics.

Wages and fringe benefits on a new two-year contract are the key issue. The union says it wants a 25 per cent wage increase and that Kaiser has offered 20.

LOCAL 399 represents clerks, lab assistants and licensed vocational nurses. It said a licensed vocational nurse in Northern California has a starting pay of $4.67 an hour which will go to $5.08 an hour in October.

The local says Kaiser hospitals in Southern California pay a licensed vocational nurse $4.00 an hour and are offering $4.34.

The local does not represent doctors and nurses.

James A. Zellers, vice president of the local, requested that in the event of a strike members of Kaiser health plans demand that Kaiser provide alternative care of comparable quality at other hospitals.

He said that if Kaiser refused, "members of the health plan would have a right to demand a refund."

Arab makes deal to buy 40% of bank

DETROIT (AP)—A Saudi Arabian financier has reached agreement with the Bank of the Commonwealth, Michigan's sixth largest bank, to buy 40 per cent of its stock.

The agreement, announced Friday, must be endorsed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which holds a $35 million note on the bank.

Ghaith Pharaon said he agreed to purchase most of the Commonwealth stock now held by the James T. Barnes family, which owns 53 per cent of the bank's preferred stock and 39 per cent of the common stock.

Under the agreement, Pharaon would purchase 80 per cent of the Barnes' interest. James T. Barnes Sr. said he would remain chairman of the bank board. Arab sources said Pharaon, 34, has close ties to the Saudi Arabian ruling family. He attended the Harvard Business School and is a director of the Jeirah Bank of Jeddah.

In December he was identified by Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Co., as the purchaser of about one million shares of Occidental stock, selling now at about $14 per share.

Robert Francis, the Michigan Banking Commissioner, said he welcomes Pharaon's purchase. "Capital knows no nationality," he said.

A recent attempt by a Lebanese investor to purchase the Community National Bank of Pontiac, Mich., was turned aside.

TWA DEAL

The Wall Street Journal reported Friday that Pan Am, another of the nation's international air carriers, was nearing a complex pact with Iran for that country's financial support.

Both Pan Am and TWA are currently running in the red.

If the projected deal goes through, it evidently would insure Pan Am's survivability for the next year or two and give it a better chance to work out a long-term solution to its financial woes.

As for Iran, the purchase of the TWA planes was viewed as another link in the ambitions of that country, rich from oil sales, to become an important modern power, with major airline routes and the facilities to attract tourists from around the world.

Pan Am officials spent Thursday and Friday in Washington, briefing government officials, who would have to approve any major deals, on the negotiations.

Washington sources with knowledge of the negotiations said no elements of the wide-ranging transaction had been agreed on. But they listed the following among possible elements of a final agreement:

—An Iranian purchase of a sizable block of Pan American securities.

—An Iranian loan to Pan American secured by mortgages on Pan American planes and other equipment.

—An Iranian purchase of a 55 per cent interest in Intercontinental Hotels, a money-making subsidiary of the airline.

Insiders estimated that chances were good that the Pan American negotiations with the Shah's government would produce one or more final agreements.

The Civil Aeronautics Board Thursday approved a request from both TWA and Pan Am to exchange overseas routes. The move could save the carriers up to $25 million annually.

Informed of the TWA announcement, an industry executive commented: "That solves their cash problem."

TWA posted a loss of $23.6 million last year. The figure would have been a lot worse had it not been for the $35.5 million in pretax profits contributed by hotel and food subsidiaries.

MEANWHILE, in Seattle, the Boeing Commercial Aircraft Corp. announced Iraqi Airways has ordered eight Boeing jet transports for delivery in 1976.

Boeing officials said the order included four 747-200C convertible jetliners, three advanced 727-200s and one advanced 737-200C.

A removal hearing is similar to an extradition hearing, except that there are no state lines involved because MacDonald's case is under federal jurisdiction.

The doctor's attorneys are expected to ask that the case be tried here because of adverse pretrial publicity surrounding the case in North Carolina and because MacDonald now lives in Huntington Beach.

Prosecutors, however, are expected to argue just as vigorously that MacDonald should be tried in North Carolina where the murders occurred.

Meanwhile, Kandell said the mood among personnel at St. Mary's is "certainly one of support for Dr. MacDonald."

SLASHER'S 9TH

Frias, 45, was discovered Wednesday.

Frias was the first victim who lived outside the downtown area, and the first who was employed.

Police Commander Pete Hagan said officers were concerned that the killer might strike anywhere in the Southland, and the discovery of Hay's body did nothing to lessen that concern.

Hagan said the police effort to solve the "slasher" killings was the most concentrated effort since the Robert Kennedy assassination and the Tate-La Bianca murders.

Two detectives have been assigned to just answer the telephone and collect tips about the killings, and already three persons have tried to convince police they were the slasher.

All three were turned loose after questioning indicated they were not the killer, Lt. Cooke said.

"You can be assured there will be others," Cooke added. "We had about 37 confessions to the Black Dahlia case some years ago."

Shabbily dressed plainclothesmen have been walking the streets of the central city in the past few days, and uniformed officers have carried copies of the composite sketch and a personality profile compiled by psychologists.

That profile said the killer was probably "a sexually impotent coward, venting his own feeling of worthlessness on hapless derelicts and down-and-outers."

He was described as a hermit, unloved and loving no one, poorly educated, who identifies with derelicts and may have a physical handicap, such as a limp.

Deputy Police Chief George Beck said the killer's victims have been "alcoholics, losers, drifters and one who had a noticeable cancer as well as a crippled back."

"Most of them were weaklings — small men, 5 feet 8 inches and under — all between the ages of 42 and 67, and all easy marks."

"I'm almost sure the... solution of these crimes lies in the past, in the records," Beck said.

"That's why we're concentrating on our records system in this new effort. This guy's got a record of some kind, and we're going to find it."

In their search of the records detectives found two killings in 1964, on the weekend of Nov. 13-14, which have never been solved.

The killer in those cases was dubbed "the central slasher," and the case was handled by homicide detective Pierce Brooks, now chief of police in Lakewood, Colo.

"Since that was never solved, I've always wondered what jail or nut house the guy was in, because someone who kills like that doesn't just stop," Brooks said.

"I'd say there's a good chance it's the same s.o.b. came back to haunt L.A."

Friday night the shock waves from the latest killings spread far beyond the wine jungles of downtown Los Angeles where the "slasher's" first seven victims were found.

Detectives noted most of the victims have died on Wednesday or Saturday and wondered whether police would find the tenth victim today.

Games people play

Action is the name of the game when Long Beach senior citizens get together daily for a friendly round of outdoor games in downtown-area parks. And if there are any barriers to fun, age doesn't seem to be one of them. Independent Press-Telegram staff photographer Curt Johnson preserved some of the action when he caught a group of white-suited lawnbowlers, left, intent on their game at Recreation Park; meanwhile, Shelby Chism readies his move in a chess game at Bixby Park; while, Willie Stofpe set his sights on a shot during a roque contest at Bixby Park; and right, Ruby Webb chalks up an expression of glee during a match at Lincoln Park.

RINGO CASE GOING TO JURY

The nine-woman, three-man jury in Long Beach's Ringo trial is to be instructed by the judge and begin its deliberations Monday.

Jurors heard four days of testimony last week on whether the controversial Queen's Pike game, a combination of ring-loss and bingo, hinges more on chance or luck.

Friday, Deputy City Prosecutor Robert Recknagel and defense attorneys C. Ransom Samuelson and Gary Carlin summarized their contentions for the panelists.

Prosecution witnesses have testified they believe the game is predominantly one of chance and so illegal under state and local lottery laws.

Charles Ray Shira, owner-operator of the bingo, concession which briefly did business at 130 W. Pike last August and September, and five other persons faced those misdemeanor lottery charges in the case.

Defense witnesses, notably two math professors from California Institute of Technology, testified they believed Ringo to be a game which hinges more on skill at ring-tossing and so is a legal enterprise.

Grand jury asks halt to nursing home fraud

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

The county grand jury Friday asked the Board of Supervisors to push for legislation to clamp down on "widespread Medi-Cal frauds and patient neglect" in nursing homes and convalescent hospitals.

The jury said its first contact with deficiencies in the Medi-Cal program began with a criminal case involving the alleged fraudulent dispensing of unneeded hearing aids to nursing home patients at a cost to the state of more than $1 million.

But, following that case, the jury said it found evidence of other deficiencies, including the fact that the legal requirement of a doctor visiting his Medi-Cal patient at least every 30 days "is being blatantly violated."

The panel said that some doctors charge for the monthly visit without ever having seen the patient.

It said there also had been evidence that portable X-ray and podiatry services are sometimes given without the prior signed order of the attending physician.

The jury said one method of fraud involved the use of Medi-Cal labels which are like blank checks when given to a provider. It said a provider can now bill the program for any coverable service, whether it has been provided or not.

"We believe that violations of this type, which are felonies, are common, yet few providers have been prosecuted," the jury told the board.

The jury said it also has discovered a "fairly common abuse" involving drug prescriptions for Medi-Cal patients. It said pharmacists are paid a $2.42 service fee for filling each prescription, but that doctors often do not specify how large a supply the patient should have.

Since the doctor usually visits the patient only once a month, the jury said, in writing out a prescription the doctor intends a 30-day supply. But because this is not specifically stated, pharmacists can fill the prescription in small quantities several times a month to increase their service fees, the jury said.

It said the overall loss from excessive refills "involves hundreds of thousands of dollars each year." It said it believes pharmacists often pay kickbacks as well to the convalescent hospitals, "but this is difficult to prove."

The jury also noted criminal prosecutions are difficult because the state Health Department requires the prior approval of its legal counsel in Sacramento before investigators can present a criminal case to a district attorney.

"This requires that the Department of Health be advised of all details of the alleged fraud and identity of the suspects — which can involve political considerations," the jury said.

Among its corrective recommendations, the jury said, investigations of fraud should be transferred from the Health Department to the attorney general's office.

It said regulations should be changed so that all drugs for Medi-Cal patients be dispensed in 30-day quantities, except for those which the state specifies should normally be given on a short-time basis.

It suggested that no hearing aids or eye examinations be given without a prior signed order from the patient's attending doctor and that no aids be supplied without tests.

Also, it said, the Medi-Cal payment labels should not be mailed in advance to providers of service. Hospitals should only be able to pick up the payment warrants after service has been completed, and after verification that a doctor has either visited the patient or that other services were actually provided.

Park-and-ride service

Drivers leave it to RTD

By RALPH HENMAN JR.
Staff Writer

Those 50 or so cars parked weekdays inside the Circle Drive-In Theater weren't abandoned after the last picture show.

Actually, they belong to a growing number of area residents who daily drive to the theater at Pacific Coast Highway and Ximeno Avenue, buy tickets at the box office, park and lock their cars and board a Southern California Rapid Transit District (RTD) bus. An hour later they alight at San Pedro Street and Temple Avenue in downtown Los Angeles.

Park-and-ride service, begun here on a trial basis late last fall, already has been rated successful and has been given permanent status by RTD officials; several of whom ride Long Beach Line 755 to work.

"It's caught on and become quite popular," said Patrick Barry of the district's marketing staff. He used to drive from his eastside home to Long Beach Boulevard and board the long-established Line 36—which continues with schedules unchanged by the new service.

"Initially we had five departures every morning," Barry said, "but very quickly there were people standing in the aisles. Two additions—seven roundtrips daily rather than the original five—were added so everybody can sit. For now, anyway."

Statistics reported earlier this week to RTD directors by General Manager Jack R. Gilstrap showed solid gains here and on eight other such services now in operation between outlying points and the central Los Angeles business district.

Among the other operations are La Mirada Line 758, from Alondra Boulevard and the Santa Ana Freeway—455 passengers, 330 parked cars. And Fullerton Line 757, from the Santa Ana and Riverside Freeway junction. Begun only last month, this facility now serves from 110-185 passengers weekdays.

Figures are based on the number of monthly passes sold and parking lot counts. Service is not offered weekends or on major legal holidays.

Long Beach service originates at Main Street and Electric Avenue in Seal Beach 19 minutes before departure times here. Buses cross the Long Beach Marina and Belmont Shore areas, taking on passengers not opting to use the parking facility.

Gilstrap said more than 200 passengers are picked up between Seal Beach and the theater, where another 95 board. Street corner service is available along Lakewood Boulevard east from the traffic circle to the San Diego Freeway.

Buses leave the theater at 6:04, 6:19, 6:31, 6:43, 6:55, 7:09 and 7:49 a.m., arriving one hour later. Each vehicle is scheduled to leave Seal Beach 19 minutes before the Long Beach departure time.

Afternoon departure times from the same Los Angeles intersection are 3:55, 4:07, 4:19, 4:31, 4:45, 5:05 and 5:35 p.m. They are scheduled to arrive in Long Beach an hour later, and 19 minutes after that in Seal Beach.

Third hearing on new coastal proposals set

BY MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Urban Affairs Writer

A third public hearing on the South Coast Regional Commission's controversial but substantially revised Powers, Funding and Government Element will be held Monday at the Long Beach Harbor Department Administration Building, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

Testimony will be heard from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., said Mel Carpenter, executive director, who anticipated hearings—possibly less heated—could be completed during the morning session.

The first plan, which gave sweeping powers over local government to a proposed permanent coastal commission, has been watered down to language somewhat more responsive to municipal rule.

The new draft proposes a successor agency which would include elected officials—which the first did not—and reduces regional authority over the local planning process in coastal zones.

Groundbreaking due in '75 on Westside

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Completion of a planning study for the Westside Industrial Redevelopment Project and groundbreaking for the initial improvements are major goals of the Long Beach Economic Development Corp. for 1975, a report for the year said Friday.

Two major areas of activity in 1974 by the nonprofit corporation were the Westside project, a 355-acre area west of the Long Beach Freeway between Eighth Street and Pacific Coast Highway, and Airport Business Park, 25 acres southwest of Spring Street and Clark Avenue.

In a report to be filed Tuesday with the City Council, City Manager John R. Mansell said the city-sponsored corporation estimates that full development of these two projects alone could provide up to 16,000 jobs in Long Beach.

The Economic Development Corp. began operations last April 1. It was created by the City Council to induce new investment in job-producing industries and maintain existing firms, in large part to offset closing of the Long Beach Naval Station.

During the past nine months, the report said, the corporation has aided seven businesses to expand local facilities, involving 1,000 jobs, and assisted three firms establishing Long Beach operations, adding 100 jobs.

Mansell called the Westside project "one of the most complex projects of a redevelopment nature yet undertaken in California" and said the corporation has placed "strong emphasis" on retaining and expanding existing industries in the area.

He pointed out that directors and staff of the corporation are working with other programs of "urgent community importance," such as the Manpower Advisory Council and the Citizens Advisory Transportation Committee.

Mansell commended the "high interest and commitment" of the corporation's board of directors, who serve without reimbursement.

The report said the corporation staff currently is working with five firms considering moving to Long Beach. Among these are a manufacturer of camping equipment, requiring 80,000 square feet of plant space; a major trucking firm, 200,000 square feet; a pharmaceutical company, 100,000 square feet; a manufacturer of electronic controls, 20,000 square feet, and a foreign manufacturer of public transportation equipment, seeking a plant site in the area.

CRUSADE TOPS $1.6 MILLION

United Crusade's Region III, which covers southeast Los Angeles County, raised $1,648,624 in the recent campaign, Chairman Richard A. McDonald said Friday.

This is a 4 per cent increase over the amount raised the previous year, and in view of the state of the economy campaign volunteers "deserve a great amount of credit," McDonald said.

Employees of four large companies — HITCO, Martin Marietta Aluminum, Procter & Gamble and Standard Brands Paint — increased the total of their contributions, he said.

Workers who reached high per capita levels of contribution were those at Tension Envelope, with an average donation of $70 per employee; Pre-Delivery Service, $48; TCI Aluminum, $44; Bruce Industries, $43; L.K. Comstock, $39; Cotter and Co., $30; the City of Santa Fe Springs, $25 and Paul Munroe Hydraulics, $21.

Cited for corporate donations were Douglas Aircraft, Ford Motor Co., Petrolane, Buffums, General Pipe and Supply, the Long Beach Clearing House, and the Independent Press-Telegram.

Funeral services set Monday for library's Mary M. Pearson

Funeral services will be held for Mary M. Pearson, "City Employee of the Year," honored librarian and author, at 3 p.m. Monday, at All Saints Episcopal Church, 346 Termino Ave. Mrs. Pearson, 67, died Tuesday.

She was an employee of the Long Beach Public Library since 1944. In 1947 she became head of the Art, Music and Philosophy Department, a post she held until her retirement last September. Her retirement was honored with three unofficial parties.

Mrs. Pearson was an authority on records and authored a book, "Recordings in Public Libraries," (1963). It still is considered a standard reference work.

She was a founding member of the Southern California Section of the Music Librarians Association. She served on the board of directors of the Mental Health Association, and also worked for the Long Beach Arts Calendar, the Long Beach Art Museum, the Los Angeles Symphony and the Long Beach Symphony.

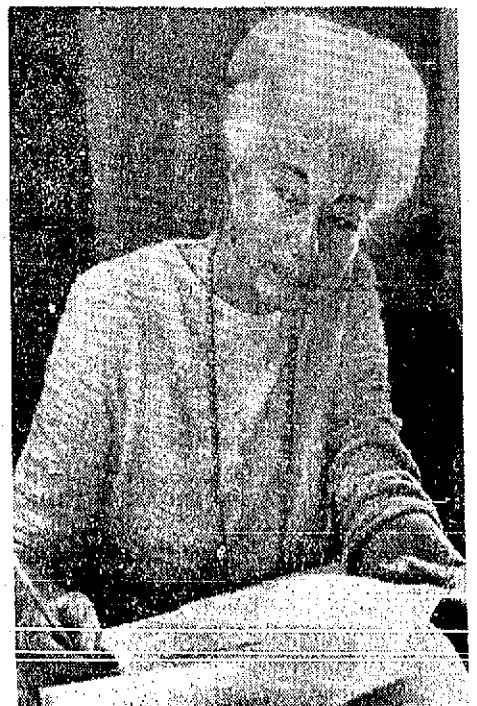

In 1970 Mrs. Pearson was named "City Employee of the Year."

"She made a great contribution to the city," said Mrs. Frances Henselman, chief librarian.

Until recent years Mrs. Pearson was an ardent backpacker and horseback explorer of the wilderness.

Her husband, Tom Pearson, a weaver and author, died several years ago. She is survived by her niece, Mary C. Downing of Long Beach.

Brothers Mortuary is in charge. Contributions may be made to the Mary M. Pearson Memorial Fund, in care of the Long Beach Public Library or All Saints Episcopal Church.

Disney not happy with 'Hook-ears'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lawyers for Walt Disney Productions argued in court Friday for the deletion of the Mickey Mouse March from the X-rated movie, "The Life and Times of the Happy Hooker."

The Disney lawyers also want three men who perform with a naked woman during the playing of the march to remove their Mickey Mouse ears. The wearing of the ears, court papers said, represents "unfair competition."

Disney Productions filed a $2.5 million damage suit in federal court, alleging the film's producer, Spangler & Sons of New York, violated the copyright laws by using the march, which was written in 1955 for the Mickey Mouse Club.

JUDGE Thomas Duffy reserved decision on a motion to block the showing of the film until the Mickey Mouse March is deleted. Another hearing was scheduled Wednesday.

Disney employees played a tape recording of the march from the film in court Friday.

Duffy advised both sides to study the parody section of the copyright law.

Eye for sale: no takers

GRASS VALLEY (UPI) — Herbert Gibboney wants to pay for surgery for his wife by selling one of his eyes for $35,000. So far, he's had no offers. His wife, Jean, 55, who needs a bone graft in her jaw, said, "We're at the end of our rope. You don't get into the hospital without that moxie—that golden stuff."

Gibboney, 58, who refuses assistance from welfare agencies, put an advertisement in a local paper with his offer. He is willing to sell an eye, a kidney or any organ that will raise the money.

The Gibboneys sold their small cocktail lounge in Los Angeles and retired here in the Sierra Nevada foothills after Gibboney suffered a heart attack.

He said his hospitalization insurance was canceled after his illness.

"You just try to get your wife in a hospital with no insurance and no money—it's impossible," he said.

ment, said many of the revisions in the second draft "reflect the input of these individuals and the contents of approximately a hundred written comments."

He added, however, that "in a number of areas, opinions were too divergent or contradictory to reconcile."

Still unanswered, according to some opponents, are the questions of funding the successor agency or agencies, the acquisition of coastal properties and the added planning responsibilities which would be required of local governments in the coastal zone.

One coastal city official, it was learned, will suggest a state bond issue for acquisition of beachfront properties "to find out if

L.B. pair bound over for trial on theft charges $9,000 in pills taken by gunman

Long Beach businessman Harry Shubin, 56, and his wife Dorothy were bound over Friday for trial in Superior Court on 12 charges of receiving stolen property.

The order was issued by Municipal Judge Thomas Zelger after a preliminary hearing in which a parade of witnesses took the stand to tell of items lost in burglaries and allegedly found in a police search of the Shubin home, 3900 Country Club Drive, and businesses in West Long Beach and Wilmington.

One young witness, Oscar Hines, told the court that, perhaps three times a week for a year he had sold stolen goods to either Mrs. Shubin, 43, or her husband.

"How do you know they were stolen items?" Deputy Dist. Atty. Denis Petty asked Hines.

"Cause I stole them," Hines answered.

In one instance, he testified, Mrs. Shubin gave him a sort of "shopping" list of items to be stolen, and because he was unfamiliar with some of the items he enlisted the aid of a girlfriend, Deborah Grindrod.

She also testified, telling the court how she dickered "street" price of the goods with Mrs. Shubin. The Grindrod girl added that she did not steal all the items on the woman's list.

At least one item had to be taken from Buffums, she said, "and I don't work Buffums."

Asked by the judge why not, she hemmed and hawed, then said quietly, "It reminds me of Saks 5th Avenue," she said. "I'm more of a Payless myself."

Another witness at the hearing was flown to Long Beach from her Milwaukee-area home for her testimony.

Mrs. Virginia Culver, a former president of the American Numismatic Society, was living in Arcadia in 1965 when her valuable coin collection was taken by burglars.

She testified that some six weeks later, she was called by attorney Samuel Salmon.

Salmon is representing the Shubin couple in the current case.

Salmon allegedly told her he had a client who had been contacted by the burglars and who might be able to obtain her coins for her—for a sort of finder's fee, Mrs. Culver said.

Several meetings were held between Mrs. Culver, Salmon, and his client, who, Mrs. Culver testified, turned out to be Shubin. At those meetings, she told the court, she was accompanied by an undercover Arcadia policeman and a district attorney's investigator posing as a relative.

No agreement ever could be reached, the woman testified, and she had despaired of seeing her coins again until police contacted her.

Much of her coin collection was found in a safe in the Shubin home—including coins bearing her name—when police searched the fashionable residence and allegedly discovered stacks of stolen goods, according to testimony.

Shubin and his wife surrendered to police in the case last Dec. 6.

Police investigator Paul Chastain, who testified to the police search, was not cross-examined by Salmon.

Zelger denied a defense motion to dismiss two of the 12 charges facing each of his clients and ordered the couple to appear for Superior Court arraignment Feb. 18 at 9 a.m. in the court's Dept. J.

Pending the arraignment, the Shubins remain free on bail of $2,500 each.

A young bespectacled gunman held up five employees at the U.S. Public Health Service dispensary in the San Pedro Post office building Friday afternoon and escaped with an estimated $9,000 worth of pills and narcotics, Harbor Division police said.

Officers reported the holdup man entered the second floor drug service at 4:15 p.m., forced two physicians and three pharmacists into an open vault, and scooped up amphetamines, morphine and cocaine and other narcotics. The drugs were valued at $210 by pharmacists but police estimated their street value at between $8-10,000.

Police said the man, described as 5'8", about 23, with shoulder-length brown hair, wore horn rimmed glasses, a tan jacket and blue jeans.

FCC denies renewals for Five Star radio stations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission denied license renewal applications for Five Star Stations, Inc. radio stations, charging they had committed numerous violations including the promotion of the political campaigns of Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Vance Hartke, D-Ind., it was announced Friday.

The FCC overruled an administrative law judge in refusing to renew the licenses of KOIL AM and FM in Omaha, Neb., and KISN AM in Vancouver, Wash., and concurred in the judge's recommendation that the license of WIFE AM and FM, Indianapolis, Ind., not be renewed.

The FCC charged in a statement that "serious misconduct had occurred in the operation of the Star stations, that Star's chief stockholder, Don Burden, was intimately involved in and had knowledge of the misconduct."

"The Commission found that during the campaigns for the Senate in 1964 in Indiana and in 1968 in Oregon, newscasts of Star stations were improperly used to publicize the campaigns of the incumbent Vance Hartke of Indiana and Oregon's then Gov. Mark Hatfield," the statement said.

"As to WIFE's preferential treatment of a political candidate, Star maintained that Ron Mercer, the general manager of WIFE from 1963 to 1965, was responsible and had duped Burden, and that Mercer on his own undertook to furnish favorable news coverage and free advertising to the candidate without Burden's knowledge or consent," the statement continued.

"However, the Commission concluded on the hearing record that Burden was privy to a scheme using a sham contract to publicize the Indiana senatorial candidate. The FCC said that political advertising was carried for 44 days free of charge, contrary to requirements of a statute governing corporate contributions to federal candidates."

"It said the scheme also included directing WIFE's news staff to provide favorable news coverage for the candidate during regular news broadcasts, and that Mercer carried out the plan under Burden's instructions," the FCC statement said.

"The commission further found that in 1966, Burden instructed KISN's staff to use regular newscasts to favor Mark Hatfield over his opponent." The FCC also charged that Star illegally sent $1,000 to Hatfield's campaign but could not determine if Hatfield ever received the money.

"In both the 1964 and 1966 campaigns, newscasts were used as a vehicle to publicize Burden's preferred candidate — not as an exercise of news judgement, but as a deception of the public and to further his private interests," the FCC said. The FCC also charged that Burden had sought revenge against former employees who might have told FCC investigators any of the facts in the case.

"Criminal provisions of federal statutes governing corporate gifts to candidates were disregarded. Such attempts to use broadcast facilities to subvert the political process cannot be ignored or condoned," the FCC said.

The FCC also charged that a number of other FCC regulations had been violated by the Star stations and said it had Predawn fire ruins gallery at St. Mary's

MORAGA (UPI) — A predawn blaze ruined the art gallery at St. Mary's College Friday, causing $100,000 damage.

Brother Carl Lyons awakened and evacuated some 30 fellow members of the Christian Brothers who were in their rooms when the fire started. Brother Carl said he was awakened by the sound of windows blowing out from the fire.

Firemen controlled the flames in 30 minutes. There were no injuries. Investigators said the fire was apparently caused by defective wiring.

Brother Mel Anderson, the college president, said none of the school's art treasures was believed to have been in the building at the time. But, he said, some contemporary paintings of the Oakland Art Association were apparently all lost.

concluded that because of the "pervasive and continuing" misconduct demonstrated in Burden's operation of his stations, it is clear that Star and Burden lack the requisite qualifications to be licensed by this commission and that the evidence of record requires the denial of each of Star's renewal applications in this proceeding."

Commissioner Robert E. Lee was the only FCC member to disagree, and said "this is an unprecedented example of an overdose of justice." Lee said the 1973 decision of administrative law judge Chester F. Naumowicz Jr. should have been upheld.

"By the commission's action today, we are effectively bankrupting the licensee and probably denying him a livelihood in his field of expertise."

The cases had long been in litigation and the FCC had never officially granted regular renewals for the stations since Burden acquired them in 1963. First he received a one-year renewal, then a six-month renewal and then hearings were set for the case that resulted in Friday's action.

Prober of hair trials to report for Sen. Bayh

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — An investigator for Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., will arrive in Europe soon to investigate U.S. Army prosecution of soldiers who refuse to cut their hair to regulation length, a civilian defense lawyer said Friday.

"I was informed by telephone from the United States that Bill Heckman will be coming to do an investigation of haircut cases for Sen. Birch Bayh," and that he was interested in talking to all personnel involved," said Chris Coates, a member of the Lawyer's Military Defense Committee, who is representing many of the servicemen.

The committee is maintained in Europe by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Coates' clients include Lt. Matthew Carroll, 27, of Mason City, Iowa, the only army officer so far court martialled for refusing to cut his hair.

The lawyer said he had been told that Heckman will talk to Carroll, as well as to other soldiers involved in the controversy and the strike in Berlin in December, and to black WAC Spec.4 Babette Payton, also due for court martial because she wears her hair in scalp-tight braids known as "corn rows," a style the army bans as "unladylike."

Carroll's pre-trial hearing began Monday and lasted through Friday, when the judge recessed it to give the Army time to say whether it has intercepted phone calls made either by the accused officer or by his lawyer. The hearing is to resume within 30 days at the latest.

Priest deals blackjack

By MARK CLUTTER

How worldly should a pastor be?

"The more worldly the better," says the Rev. Thomas Higgins, a Jesuit who is an assistant chaplain and professor at Loyola Marymount University in Westchester.

During his summer vacations he works as a blackjack dealer in Las Vegas.

Father Higgins says, "You can't preach Christ if your experience is entirely different from that of other people."

As a blackjack dealer he can't function much as a priest, but he can help people by saying things like "You're drunk. Why don't you go home before you drop your whole load?"

Few clergymen would want to follow Father Higgins' example, but many, especially the young, feel themselves ignorant of the world. Many grew up in sheltered, pious homes and got their education in church colleges and seminaries.

A rabbi said, "I have no idea when I started drinking. There was always whisky and wine on our dining table. Nobody in my family ever drank beyond the point of merriment. I became a chaplain and I was horrified to see soldiers getting blind drunk. I wouldn't have been more shocked if someone had eaten all the salt on the table."

No one should have the idea that the clergy is naive except in youth. Even the most sedate churches have their share of sin, folly, misery and tragedy. The pastor knows. Most pastors know more about sin than seasoned policemen, who are dealing with only the overt wrong-doers.

Churchmen are reluctant to guess what is happening. There is the idea that the loyal have become more loyal as the lukewarm have dropped away.

The notable exception to the pattern is the Southern Baptist Convention. Its membership increased 1.9 per cent and contributions increased 11.9 per cent.

HOW FAR should "gentlemen of the cloth" go in involving themselves in politics? This has been a tough problem at least since the Emperor Constantine declared Christianity to be the official Roman religion.

James Armstrong, United Methodist bishop of the Dakotas, recently stirred up the problem again. He went all out in campaigning for Sen. George McGovern last fall. Many Methodists thought he was too far out.

"I try not to separate my world into neat compartments, drawing false distinction between the 'secular' and the 'sacred,'" the bishop said. "The Bible draws no such distinctions."

"The doctrine of the separation of church and state does not mean that religious people, even priests, rabbis and ministers, will be denied the right to participate in the political process."

"Quite the contrary, it guarantees that right, the right to function as free citizens, without pressure or intimidation from special interest groups within the government or the institutional church."

His logic sounds right, but the question has never FEWER Protestants are giving more money to their churches — but they are not keeping pace with inflation, the National Council of Churches reports.

Giving rose by 7.7 per cent in 1973 but the dollar lost 9.6 in purchasing power.

Isn't this a hardship for a family of average income? Many do not think so.

CARDINALS attended the enthronement of Dr. Donald Coggan as the 101st Archbishop of Canterbury.

Sometimes tiny bits of news are highly important. This is the first time that Roman Catholic prelates attended such a function since the Church of England split with Rome 400 years ago.

There has been increasing friendliness and many discussions in recent years. Geoffrey Fisher, the 99th archbishop, visited Pope John XXIII. It is perhaps significant that Billy Graham also attended. Orthodox churches and many Protestant bodies were represented.

Most church leaders are seeking peace. This doesn't necessarily mean that the old prejudices are dying out. The British police were ready for any eventuality.

A LETTER

To be a Jew, never give up

Religion Editor:

As one who has read the works of Elie Wiesel extensively, I would consider him the antithesis of the "despairing Jew." In fact, he himself has written just a year ago an article appropriately entitled "Against Despair," from which I quote:

"Faced with despair, the Jew has three options. He could choose resignation, total resignation—and some of us did so one generation ago. Remember all those processions, all those nocturnal processions of men and women and children going silently to the mass graves . . .

"Or we could seek refuge in self-delusion—and some individual Jews tried it in some places: assimilation was meant to be an option in some quarters. Or conversion. Yes, there were Jews who came to the realistic conclusion that since Jewishness was forever linked to suffering, they had to give it up to protect their children and even themselves.

"But then there exists a third option—the most enriching and exciting of the three. To face the situation and do one's utmost to surmount it—as a Jew."

For this is the meaning of being Jewish: never to give up—never to yield to despair.

On the Jewish holiday of Simchas-Torah, Jews are ordered to sing and dance in celebration of the Torah, the sacred scrolls. Even in the death camps of the Nazis, several hundred Jews gathered to organize the traditional procession with the Torah scrolls—but there were no scrolls. An old man noticed a frail, young boy, asking him, "Do you remember the sacred prayer, Shema Yisroel?" "Yes, grandfather, I do," said the lad. The old man lifted the boy from the ground and began dancing with him—as though he were the Torah. And all joined in, they all sang and danced and cried—but never before had Jews celebrated Simchas-Torah with such fervor.

We owe it to our past never to lose hope, Paul J. Hull, M.D., Long Beach

Archdeacon

The Rev. Donald R. Behm will conclude his ministry Sunday as rector of All Saints Episcopal Church, Colorado Street and Termino Avenue. He has been appointed Archdeacon of the vast Diocese of Los Angeles.

"Archdeacon" is a rather unusual title in the Episcopal Church in America. An archdeacon oversees diocesan mission churches, of which there are many in this diocese. "Seventy-five per cent of my time will be spent on the road, living out of a suitcase," Father Behm said.

Father Behm came to All Saints in 1966. Before that he was rector in Trinidad, Colo., and in Denver. He is a graduate of Kenyon College and of Seabury Western Theological Seminary.

Testimonial

What does your religion mean to you? Many old-time churches featured "Testimonials." People stood up and told what the Lord had done for them.

This is an invitation to Testimonial. In 250 words or less—preferably less—tell our readers what religion has done for you. Your statements should be submitted in the next seven days. Use a typewriter if possible.

All statements must be signed. If you belong to a church, use the name and address of the church. Here are some questions you may consider:

Has religion given you joy? Do you feel that you are a better citizen, spouse and parent because of your religion?

Do you love mankind, in spite of its terrible flaws, better than you would without religion?

Do you think you will go to Hell unless you avoid the Seven Deadly Sins—Pride, Lust, Gluttony, Anger, Envy, Greed and Sloth?

Do you think your conduct in this life is preparation for the rewards of Heaven?

These questions are just suggestions. Your answer should be very personal.

What does your religion mean to you? Send your statements to:

The Prayer Quiz

What people think

By MARK CLUTTER

The answers to the recent Prayer Quiz were thoughtful and thought-provoking. Many readers replied at length, describing their own experiences with prayer.

The larger number of those who answered were women past 40, but many men and some young women replied. Most denominations were represented.

Many of the statements cannot be answered with a simple "True or False" so many readers qualified their answers.

Here is a summary of results:

1. If one prays long and earnestly enough, God will grant his request.

A small majority disagrees. Many pointed out that prayers are answered according to God's will and that often the answers are better than our own desires.

2. Prayer can heal severe physical diseases.

A large majority said "True." A pastor of a church that does not emphasize faith healing said he had seen it happen. A woman said that she had been healed of three cancers. Several pointed out that prayer should be used together with medical treatment.

3. Prayer in worship services is a good way to feel friendship and love for your fellow church members.

Almost everyone agrees although a few pointed out that prayer should be directed to God.

4. Prayer can heal — or aid in healing — diseases of psychological origin such as obesity, alcoholism, drug addiction, self-destructive sexual behavior and acute depression.

A large majority agrees.

5. If enough people throughout the world prayed, according to their various religions, for universal peace, justice and brotherhood, our tragic planet would be a happier place to live within a few years.

Opinion is divided. A large minority disagrees. Some feel that the prayers of non-Christians are of no value. Others think we are now living in the last days.

6. In time of war prayer will hasten victory for a just cause.

The Emperor Napoleon, that cynical and sinister man, said, "God is on the side of the heavy artillery." Those who responded were about equally divided on the value of prayer for victory. "What is a just cause? Both sides think justice is on their side," some said. "One should pray instead for a just peace," others responded. And one quoted Jesus: "He who lives by the sword will die by the sword."

7. Through prayer a person may achieve inner peace, self-knowledge and kinship with God.

Only one person disagreed.

8. Prayer will make crops grow and yield more bounteously.

A majority, but not a big one, said "Yes." Some cited experiments, not entirely conclusive, that plants are sensitive to human feelings. Others argued that good crops depend on weather.

9. Prayer as invocation adds respectability to sessions of Congress, city councils and school board meetings.

A majority approves of invocations if they are sincere. A minority finds them hypocritical and useless.

10. Prayer is just a remnant of obsolete social customs and has no meaning in the scientific, sophisticated, organizational world we live in.

Understandably, no readers of this quiz agreed.

11. I have personally received direct answers to prayer that can be explained in no other way.

A large majority said "Yes."

12. When "liberals" change the forms and traditions of public worship, the power of prayer is greatly reduced.

Roman Catholics and Episcopalians have been changing and experimenting with the forms of liturgy. Other churches are also trying innovations. The resulting controversies may be mostly of concern to religious professionals. A large majority weren't disturbed by change.

13. Satan also answers prayers.

Many refrained from expressing an opinion. Some said that if a person yearns for evil, Satan will grant his wish in some unpleasant way.

14. Ask and it shall be given unto you. Seek and you shall find.

The majority accepts this promise of Jesus.

15. "Work," say the Benedictines, "is prayer." Prayer, the saying of mere words, is useless unless it is linked with action.

A majority agreed. Those who disagreed argued that "mere words" can have meaning, that prayer is also a means of meditation that does not lead to direct action.

Gospel singer to appear on telethon

Internationally famous gospel singer Bessie Griffin will appear on the "Stop Arthritis" telethon this weekend on KTLA, Channel 5.

Miss Griffin will be featured at 10 a.m. Sunday when she will introduce a new composition by Louise Lewis and Gwendolyn Lightner entitled "Lift Your Hands" (Praise our God).

Miss Lewis is recognized as one of Hollywood's finest religious composers.

Miss Lightner, who will accompany Miss Griffin for this telecast, was the pianist for the late great Mahalia Jackson.

Jane Wyman is the campaign chairwomen.

Butz praises work ethic of Nisei farmers

FRESNO (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz paid tribute Friday to Japanese-American farmers, who he said have the kind of old-fashioned work ethic lacking in many other Americans.

"The work ethic as well as a strong family structure have been eroded in many parts of America today," Butz said. "The drive for self-sufficiency and independence has been diluted. There are too many of us today who think there is a free lunch."

Butz' remarks were in a speech prepared for the annual banquet of the Nisei Farmers League. He said today's descendants of Japanese immigrants are examples of the historical American ethnic melting pot.

Earlier Butz told reporters in Visalia that prices charged for food stamps should be increased to restore "financial sanity" to the program.

The federal cost of providing food stamps to low income citizens has increased $225 million or 40 per cent in the past two years, he said.

The Rev. Julio Delatorre will speak on modern social and personal problems at the Long Beach Mission of the Church of Scientology, 1261 Long Beach Boulevard, Friday at 7 p.m.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

The Secret of Popularity

Do you want to be popular? Well, here's how. Learn that there is a way to reach every person. Then deal with each one on that basis. Sometimes people gruffly hide behind barriers, but there is a key that will open them up. But you must exercise patience and send out genuine good will toward them.

Just the other day I got into a taxicab in New York City and was struck immediately by the fact that it was one of the dirtiest cabs I'd ever been in. I thought to myself that the driver might at least sweep the floor once in a while.

Then I studied the driver himself. He was an oldish man, maybe 65. He was a huge person and quite obese; the folds of his neck hung low over his dirty collar. He needed a shave and a haircut.

And, just because I could feel some criticism of the man and his cab, welling up inside me, I made a forced effort to say in as pleasant and cheerful a voice as I could muster, "Good morning."

"So what?" was his spirit-chilling reply.

I tried a few more conversational passes and each time was repelled by grunts and obvious lack of courtesy. I struggled against it, yet my feeling of annoyance toward him increased. I had to remind myself that I am always urging people to regard their fellow-men as children of God and to think of each other with esteem and good will. So I sat back and concentrated on this boorish and ill-mannered fellow as a child of God, too.

I tried to find something attractive, something I could respond to about him. I looked for some way to reach and communicate with him. But I just couldn't until I looked up at his name on the card. It was a long Italian name and I tried pronouncing it to myself. It had a melodic quality. Then I asked him, "That your name up there?"

"Why do you think it's there?" he answered.

"I suppose you're Italian," I continued.

"Yes," he said, still surly, "I was born in Italy, but why are you interested?"

"I've been in Italy a number of times," I told him. "I wish I could learn the language. Sometimes I think it's the most beautiful language I have heard; take the names of towns, for example, what music in their soft beauty of sound — Salerno, Sorrento, Amalfi, Padua, Capri." I rolled the vowels out as musically as I could.

He turned around and looked at me for the first time. "Yes, they are pretty names. I came from near Sorrento."

"That's one of my favorite places... washed by the blue Bay of Naples," I said.

"Your name," I went on, "also has the music and sunlight of Italy in it. Really it has."

That finally got him. He turned around again and gave me a smile that lighted up his big face. His personality came out and looked at me timidly, but suddenly I had the feeling that the glory of his immortal soul shone forth. It occurred to me after leaving his cab that the attractive personality which I had encountered had been waiting for recognition as an individual, as a human being.

I often think of the significant statement of William James, the great psychologist:

"One of the deepest drives in human nature is the desire to be appreciated." The longing for self-esteem and appreciation, for love, if you please, is the key that unlocks the human heart. If you want to be liked, simply like people.

As you talk to people or think about them, try seeing them not as problems that annoy you, but as children of God, as immortal souls full of charm and dignity. As you give them the respect and appreciation to which their true qualities entitle them, they will become finer persons than you can imagine. Go about looking for the good in people and you will find it in abundant measure, just as you will find the bad if you view men with suspicion and hostility.

It is this art of appreciating others, this recognition of the greatness in man, that is the secret of your own true popularity. Look for lovable qualities in others, and they will surely find the same in you.

'Spotlight Awards

Church Council honors four

Four persons who have made important contributions to the religious life of the community were given Spotlight Awards Friday night at the 22nd anniversary dinner of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches at First Congregational Church.

The awards are given annually to an outstanding clergyman, layman, laywoman and youth.

Here are brief summaries of the contributions of those who were honored this year:

THE REV. EDWARD JOSEPH READ is pastor of Bixby Knolls Christian Church. He came to the position in 1960 after graduation from Texas Christian University and Brite Seminary followed by seven years as a Navy chaplain.

Pastor Read conducts two Sunday morning services, teaches an adult church school class, leads groups on Tuesday morning and Wednesday evening, sings in the choir and the men's quartet and directs the church youth band. He made 493 pastoral calls last year. He is enrolled in a doctoral program at Fuller Seminary.

He participates in many community religious groups. He is a commander in the Naval Reserve and immediate past commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Chaplain Company 11-2.

MRS. MARGUERITE KIEFER is a ruling elder of Covenant Presbyterian Church. She is a retired social worker for Los Angeles County, but she is still heavily involved in community services. She is a supporter of the Inner City Ministries. Because of her background many agencies seek her expert advice.

Mrs. Kiefer serves in many Presbyterian and ecumenical groups. She is a former president of Church Women United. She has lived here for 50 years.

PAUL A. NICHOL, retired plant manager of Proctor and Gamble, is a very busy layman in Belmont Heights United Methodist Church. He is at present the charge lay leader, but in his 33 years here he has held almost every office in the church. He is a member of the Wesley Foundation Board for LBSU.

He is also active in of Methodists set rally on hunger

A World Hunger Rally, sponsored by the United Methodist Committee on Relief, will be held in the First United Methodist Church, 507 Pacific Ave., Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

This is one of three public rallies on the world hunger issue being held in the Los Angeles Metropolitan area this weekend, in conjunction with the national meeting here of the United Methodist relief agency.

Speakers at the Long Beach rally will be Dr. James J. Thomas, executive secretary of UMCOR for specialized ministries; Dr. Michael C. Watson, who established a medical mission program in Haiti, and the Rev. G. Gerald Schmidt, of the UMCOR staff.

Mrs. Barbara Wilde of the national board of UMCOR will chair the rally, which will stress how people can be involved in hunger and relief service, and what kinds of persons are now needed in overseas hunger work.

The United Methodist Committee on Relief has recently approved an expenditure of $200,000 for the largest single, direct food purchase in its history, in an effort to aid starving people in India.

fices related to Memorial Hospital, Metropolitan YMCA, United Crusade, Heart Association, the Service Corps of Retired Executives and Goodwill Industries.

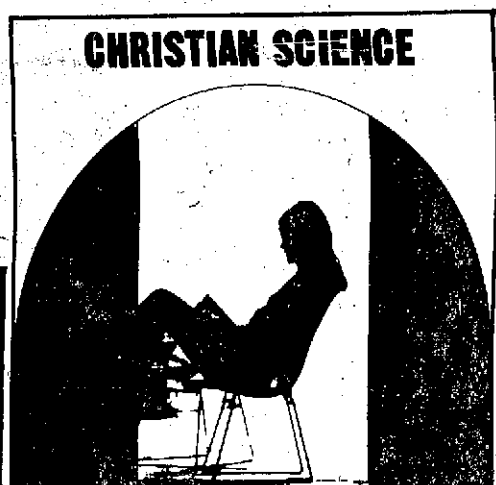

JANICE CAVIN, who is 20, is a member of First Baptist Church in Long Beach and a student majoring in Christian education at Biola College. She has served in leadership positions since junior high days. She is active in Guide Girls and has written devotional articles for their publication.

She is active in YUQO (Youth Unlimited Gospel Outreach), an interdenominational group that makes several trips a year into the Mexican Valley to spread the Gospel to people in small villages.

She is so involved with church and college work that she is not in any general community activities.

ATTEND CHURCH

—OF YOUR CHOICE—

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

How can you help them "find themselves"?

If you can help your young people feel there's a law of good governing their lives, you're giving them something to hold to.

And there is such a law. It's rooted in God, divine Principle, and His love for each of His children.

Perhaps you could offer your teen-agers the opportunity to attend a Christian Science Sunday School. They can learn more about the Bible and Christ Jesus' teachings, and how to experience God's law of good.

ALL YOUNG PEOPLE TO THE AGE OF 20 ARE WELCOME TO ATTEND OUR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

SUNDAY CHURCH SERVICES ARE HELD IN LONG BEACH AS FOLLOWS

Leary held 'articulate, intellegent'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — As a witness, one-time LSD advocate Timothy Leary is "excellent, with good recall for details and precise answers," a state attorney said Friday.

"If you met him and didn't know anything about him, you wouldn't think anything about drugs," said Deputy Atty. Gen. Frank Iwama. "He's highly intelligent and very articulate."

Iwama questioned Leary last Monday at a closed-door hearing of the state Personnel Board for a psychologist who is fighting his dismissal by the state.

OFFICIALS say one reason Dr. Wesley Hiler was fired is that he played tape-recorded interviews with Leary for a magazine editor. The interviews were made while Leary was a prisoner at the California Medical Facility in Vacaville.

Leary, who escaped in 1970 from a state prison where he was serving a marijuana possession sentence, is now in federal custody.

Iwama said Leary denied Hiler's contention that the psychologist had Leary's permission to play the tapes outside the prison.

"LEARY said he was caught by surprise when Hiler told him a magazine editor was listening to the tapes," Iwama said. "Leary said the only person he authorized to hear the tapes was Joanna Leary."

He said Joanna Harcourt-Smith, described previously as Leary's girlfriend, now calls herself Leary's wife, although the two have not been legally married.

SHOWN IN back seat of their 1968 convertible Rolls Royce Phantom V are Dr. and Mrs. Erle M. Heath of Mt. Lebanon, Pa. (UPI)

Pa. doctor will lend special Rolls to Queen in Bermuda

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A Pennsylvania doctor is lending a sparkling Rolls-Royce convertible to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip for their visit to Bermuda next month.

The 1968 Phantom V, the only convertible Rolls of its type in the U.S. originally was built for Alexander Dubcek, deposed Czechoslovakian reform leader.

When Dubcek fell from power, the sleek auto was returned to Rolls. As soon as Dr. Erle M. Heath of Mt. Lebanon, Pa., heard the Rolls was on the market he bought it sight unseen to add to his classic car collection.

The royal couple will make a two-day state visit to Bermuda Feb. 16. Island officials felt that all the cars available on Bermuda were not suitable for the Queen and her husband.

They contacted the Rolls Royce Car Club of America about their problem. Heath, a member, agreed to lend the Phantom V to the royal couple.

Lou "Wheels" Cardello, who maintains Heath's fleet of 17 classic cars, will drive the Phantom V to New York Feb. 2. The Rolls then will be crated and put on a ship for the trip to Bermuda.

The black, chrome-trimmed Phantom has a wood interior and wine-colored leather seats. It has a built-in television set and bar in the rear compartment, which is separated from the front seat by a heavy glass windshield.

The rear seat can be elevated electrically, making it easier for the royal couple to wave to their subjects as they drive along their parade route in Bermuda.

The rear and front compartments of the Phantom are individually air conditioned. In addition, the car has two radio systems and fluorescent lights in the rear compartment.

"This is one of the finest Rolls-Royces that I have ever driven and I have driven quite a few of them," Cardello said.

Tokyo girls pine for gold

TOKYO (UPI) — Charming bar hostess Akemi-san is downcast among the glittering neon lights that sparkle across Tokyo's famous Ginza District.

"I wonder what all those businessmen who used to spend a lot of money are doing now?" she muses as she chain smokes while waiting for a customer to come and ask her to keep him company.

Akemi-san, 26, is one of the thousands of hostesses working in 2,000 bars, cabarets and night clubs on the ginza, Tokyo's counterpart to New York's Broadway.

The ginza entertainment district, has long thrived on businessmen blessed with almost unlimited expense accounts.

During the days when Japan could get cheap oil to expand its industries, small companies and big corporations alike spent money lavishly to entertain friends and customers. The money spent was tax free because the government considered such expenditures necessary in keeping businesses going.

It was also no secret that before the 1973 Arab oil squeeze many company employees took turns having themselves entertained at company expense.

"Those businessmen didn't mind to paying 30,000 yen ($100) for a bottle of whisky," said Akemi-san, who used to earn more than $1,600 a month. "After the oil shock, many of them either completely stopped coming or cut down on the number of their visits."

Jewish tradition key to 'Dybbuk'

By ROBERT C. WYLER

It has often been said that you don't have to be crazy to be a psychologist, but it helps. I feel the same way about "The Dybbuk," now playing at the Forum: you don't have to be Jewish to enjoy it, but it would help. In fact, no one without some knowledge of the Jewish tradition is likely either to understand it entirely or to appreciate it fully.

Taken out of its context, the content of the play isn't really very interesting. In the first act the spirit of a young man possesses the body of the young woman he loved. In the seemingly very long second act a rabbi struggled to exorcise the dybbuk and to free the girl. That's it.

BUT PUT back into its context of a Jewish hassidic community in Poland of the 1880's, that rather simple plot becomes a way of presenting and underlining the values of the Jewish world. In the John Hirsch arrangement of S. Ansky's original 1920 script we find a good deal of the folklore and a good many of the folkways of the community as well as numerous echoes of village life among an oppressed people. The sense of unity that pervades the play makes the possession of the girl not a personal but a community disaster. In a world circumscribed by religious laws and hassidic tradition, a disruption like the dybbuk can shatter the world. A spirit stronger than the rabbi is a threat to man and God alike. No wonder the villagers are shaken. The cast bringing us the play is almost as numerous as the villagers of Brinitz: there are almost three dozen players, of whom a dozen or so have significant parts. All perform excellently. Nehemiah Persoff as Rabbi Azrielke dominates the stage in the second act, bringing vitality and spiritual strength to the almost overwhelming job of exorcising the dybbuk and conducting the trial of the possessed girl's father. Equally compelling is the performance of Marilyn Lightstone as the bridge possessed by the demon. Her frenzied makes the dybbuk very real indeed. Jean-Paul Mustone plays Chanon, whose spirit enters the girl's body. Bert Freed is Sender, the girl's father, and George Sperdakos is the Messenger. All are good.

Maxine Graham's simple but effective set enhances the action, producing a sense of timelessness while allowing an easy flow of movement in time and space. Graham and Mark Negin collaborated on the costumes, which also aid in establishing just the right atmosphere.

Well, I can't say that I understood it all or got out of it all I might, but I can say that it was a very interesting experience. I'm glad I went. I wonder how my Jewish friends will react to it. They're as far from the hassidic community as I am, I suspect. Sholom aleichem.

Earl Wilson Susskind rates past TV guests

NEW YORK — David Susskind was on a plane for Hollywood to tape "A Moon for the Misbegotten" for TV May 27 and at the same time he was looking for more controversial subjects to interview.

"There are no more movie stars left that are worth a damn," he said. "Garbo? She didn't talk when she was working! Howard Hughes? He'd be good if he could hear you. Paul Getty gave me a good interview. It's really true that he has a pay phone for his guests. He told me that even in his own hotels, he did his own laundry, and he warned me, 'Don't ever call room service, they'll kill you!'"

Khrushchev was the most controversial back in October, 1960. "The critics tore me limb from limb, and the banks and ad agencies said he shouldn't be allowed to sell his propaganda on the air," Susskind remembered.

"I had Nixon for 4 hours when he was vice president and he was terrible. His beard grew on the show. He was a poor master of double talk."

"Harry Truman was terrific. He talked about writing that letter to the music critic who reviewed Margaret's singing. Truman said, 'I was so god-damn mad I sat down and wrote that letter saying, 'I'm going to kick you in a place of particular sensitivity to men.' And then I couldn't find a stamp. Do you know, they don't have stamps in the White House?"

"I asked Bertrand Russell what had changed most in 90 years and he said 'Sex.'"

"Who would you like most to do now?" "If I could do anyone? Carlo Gambino, the real Godfather, the Don of the Dons, he's 74 and living out there in Islip. He'd be better than Khrushchev."

Today's Best Laugh: A man boasted he'd been on a TV game show and won the top prize — tickets to another TV game show with much bigger prizes.

Wish I'd Said That: Someone described a bore: "He never seems to have a previous engagement."

Remembered Quote: "An airplane is like an egg. There is no such thing as a fairly good one." — Wes Izzard.

Earl's Pearls: A fellow grumbled that his wife overdoes the nostalgia craze: "For instance, she spends money like it was the good old days."

Today's headlines prove the old line is right: "Americans don't really want a cheaper car — what they want is an expensive car for less money." That's earl, brother.

Forecast for SUNDAY

Your birthday today: Practicality and a search for dependable methods dominate this coming year, with high rewards promised for efforts that are well directed. The means, not the results, are most important. Relationships are active and provide many tense moments. Today's natives are generally restless, with tendencies toward extremes.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Do your fair share of Sunday customs without making a big deal of it. Spend the afternoon pursuing favorite sports, hobbies and contacts.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Take action rather than talk about it. Give yourself plenty of time and room in which to develop your own creative ideas.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Outdoor activities, if feasible, are preferable to playing in. Take sensible precautions in dealing with the unfamiliar. Bring companions who know the route.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Don't insist upon any limited plan. Change things so that you're free to accept challenges or an invitation. You have an advantage you don't fully realize.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's time you took the initiative. Set goals and priorities early. Pursue social or experimental enterprise. Avoid business and shop talk.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): don't expect ceremony or even a "thank you" for your help. Do the best you can for the issues and people you endorse.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be gracious and grant favors wherever possible. Start early to attend to details and to make connections on route.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lively people are ideal companions this Sunday. Give in to a healthy impulse; speak up and express your deeper feelings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You give and receive personal benefits today. Put aside commercial transactions. Encourage friends to join forces for new goals.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Gather your best friends for open-air pastimes, public entertainment. Take care to avoid overdoing anything.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You're expected to participate in group action. Choose competitive sports or recreation that you can handle. Show off your best qualities.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): This Sunday promises fun, entertainment and cooperation among people you've managed to get together. Enjoy a busy and happy evening.

Industry Week

Steel working on 'bottlenecks'

CLEVELAND — Construction in this decade of entirely new and large plants to boost steel capacity in the U.S. is becoming increasingly unlikely, Industry Week reported Friday.

The nation will need at least 25 million additional tons of capacity by 1980 to produce raw steel. To be completed by that date, construction of a "greenfield" mill—a new facility from the ground up—would have to start this year or next. It's all but impossible to supply equipment for such an early start, the magazine for managers pointed out.

With emphasis on adding capacity in the most inexpensive way possible, it appears that steel companies are concentrating on removing "bottlenecks" and adding to present facilities. This route appears to be offering more possibilities of increasing capacity than had been anticipated, Industry Week said.

THE GENERAL expectation has been that while an early and substantial part of the additional capacity needed would be produced by "rounding out" existing facilities, attainment of the total would require building one or more "greenfield" mills.

By "rounding out," existing equipment would be modified and bottlenecks would be eliminated, with a net result of added capacity.

Beyond "rounding out," existing mills can gain additional capacity by "optimizing" or "maximizing" facilities. "Maximizing" means adding equipment, such as a blast furnace, a basic oxygen steelmaking shop, an electric furnace, or a finishing mill, until the full potential of a steel plant is reached, Industry Week explained.

The president of one steel company said the cost for a new, integrated steel plant that could make 5 million tons of steel a year would be $6 billion. This figure would include essential supporting facilities such as new coal, limestone, and iron ore supplies.

AS A RESULT, steel-makers will try to get everything they can out of existing plants before taking on a "greenfield" project. A major consideration is cost, Industry Week said. Steelmakers contend that they'll need several years of sustained profitability to attract the financing needed to build new plants.

Industry Week also reported today that "nesting" of industries is beginning to be looked upon as a way to conserve energy and materials.

Under the "nesting" concept, industrial plants are located around and connected to an energy plant and with each other so that output, including waste, from one can be used as a resource for another.

A move in this direction is being made near Newport, Ind., close to the Indiana-Illinois line, where by this coming June waste steam from an adjacent power generating station will be used in a paper recycling operation of Inland Container Corp.

Purex's sales show increase

Purex Corp. announced Friday that its sales and earnings for the second fiscal quarter ended Dec. 31 and for the six-month period from July 1-Dec. 31 have established all-time highs for both periods.

The Lakewood-based firm is in international manufacturing and marketing of household cleaning products, specialty food items, drugs and toiletries, industrial and commercial cleaning products and agricultural products.

President William R. Tinch said that net sales for the six-month period were up to $207.6 million as compared to $193.4 million for the same period in 1973.

First woman

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Hattie W. Caraway, Arkansas Democrat, was the first woman elected to the United States Senate.

Mrs. Caraway was appointed to fill the unexpired term of her late husband, former Sen. T. H. Caraway, D-Ark. She was later elected in a special election Jan. 12, 1932, to complete the term.

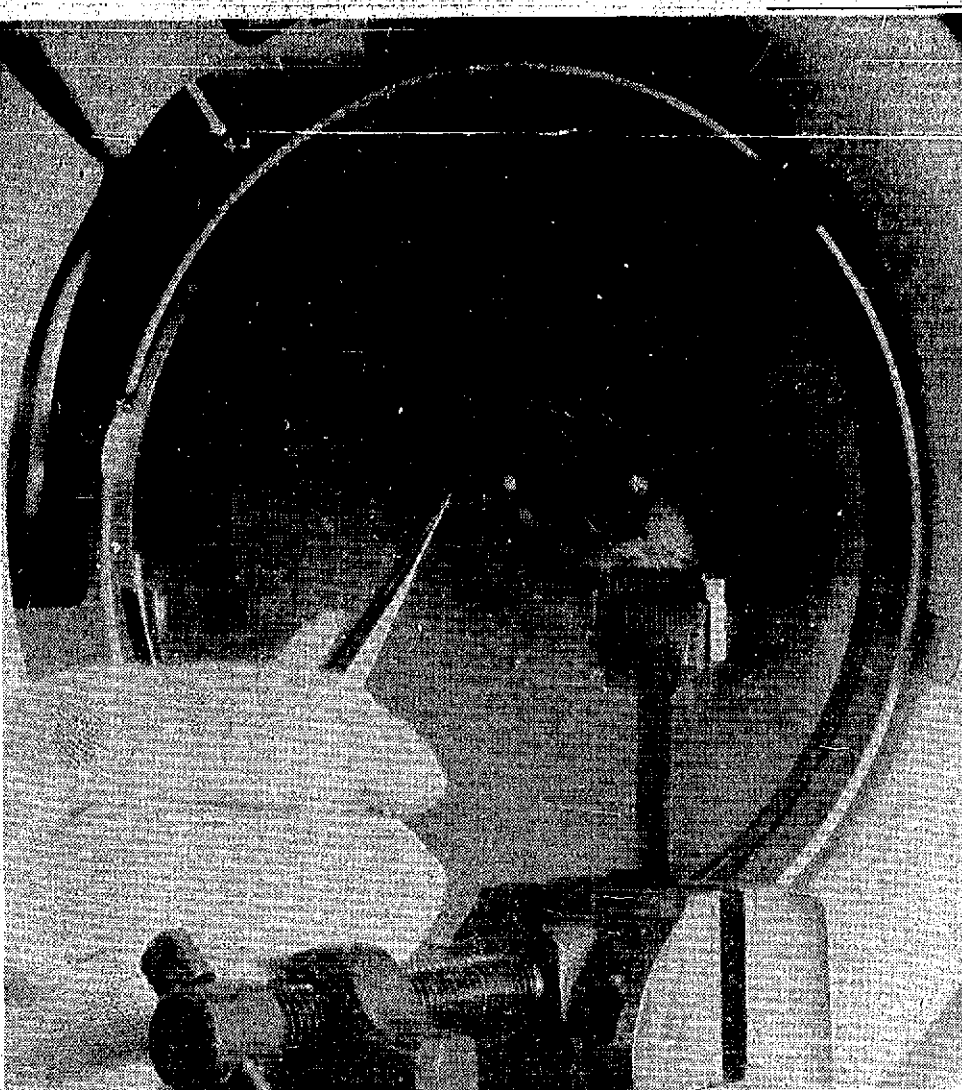

Some owners hurt by gasoline shortage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The gasoline shortage and inflation put a dent in amusement attendance in California in 1974, but a lot of people still spent money for a good time.

The gasoline shortage had mixed effects. It kept some people at home while others who usually take long trips settled for short ones. The prospect of gasoline prices going to 75 cents or 80 cents a gallon under President Ford's fuel program drew varied reaction from park operators.

Disneyland in Anaheim reported that attendance fell to 9.7 million in its October 1973-September 1974 fiscal year from 10.1 million in the previous year.

"A lot of our attendance was local," said a Disneyland spokesman. "The out-of-state attendance was down. Even if

Detroit designs for the future: autos will be shorter, lighter

DETROIT (AP) — The standard-size family car, the 18-foot, 2½-ton American species of automobile, is on the verge of extinction.

Detroit auto makers are now designing cars for the late 1970s which will be about two feet shorter, 500 to 1,000 pounds lighter and several inches taller than today's full-size car.

The new standards will be about the same size as standard cars of the 1950s. But they will still be big by European standards — a little longer than a Jaguar sedan and a few inches shorter than a Rolls Royce Silver Shadow.

The new generation of standards may be forced to debut in 1977 when stricter federal anti-emission requirements go into effect.

Ford says its luxury compact Granadas and Monarchs, introduced last fall, are the first of its new line of small family cars. General Motors will move in that direction in March, introducing a new small Cadillac, two feet shorter and a half ton lighter than current models.

"WE'RE REDUCING the size of the cars externally, and perhaps we'll sacrifice luggage space, but we're trying to retain the room inside the cars," says GM Vice President Ernest S. Starkman.

Harold C. MacDonald, vice president of product development at Ford, said Ford's late 1970s cars will have the same interior length as current models, but "the interior width will be reduced from 63 to 64 inches to about 61 inches."

The government expects U.S. auto makers to improve the average mileage of their cars to 18.7 miles per gallon in 1980.

After fuel shortages brought on by the Middle East oil embargo, the companies promised — after Congress threatened to legislate it — to improve the fuel economy for 1980 models by 40 per cent over 1974 models.

The car makers expect to meet that goal by building smaller, more efficient engines, designing aerodynamic cars and substituting lighter materials for conventional metals where possible. An industry yardstick says a 400-pound weight reduction adds one mile per gallon.

GM says it expects to spend $3 billion on changes in its 1975 to 1978 cars to meet the fuel economy goal. The firm says it is already halfway there with its 1975 models, with engine refinements and antipollution catalytic converters.

AVERAGE weight of a GM car should be cut from 4,340 pounds in 1976 to 3,750 in 1978, a 14 per cent cut.

GM also says its biggest V8 will be dropped and a new small V8, several four-cylinder power plants and lightweight transmissions will be introduced.

"These cars will be new from the ground up — the springs, suspension, body and frame," said Robert

C. Stempel, assistant chief engineer at Chevrolet.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler say they can meet the 40 per cent goal by as early as 1978 if tough emission and safety standards set for that year are relaxed to current levels.

However, an Environmental Protection Agency report issued this week indicates that widespread use of catalytic converters may create a health hazard more serious than the one it is designed to correct.

THE AUTO makers are counting on improving the over-all fuel economy of their cars by selling a larger percentage of compacts and subcompacts.

Starkman estimated a 2 to 3 per cent consumer switch a year to small cars. They now take nearly 50 per cent of the market.

"It's mostly a matter of demand," he said. "The need to conserve resources make small cars more attractive. The consumer is going to smaller cars. We're having a population implosion. The average family size is getting smaller."

MacDonald said Ford projects that by 1980 two of every three cars will be compacts or subcompacts, even though the big cars will be smaller.

Americans who insist on buying the large land-cruiser of today may have to do their bargaining in the future with a used car salesman, says Charles M. Heinen, Chrysler's director of vehicle emissions planning.

Patterson heading Lakewood Center MA

Dan Patterson, manager of the Harris and Frank Store, Lakewood, has been elected president of the Lakewood Center Merchant's Association.

Patterson, who replaces Dudley Beckett, former manager of Bullock's, Lakewood, as head of the promotional organization, has been with Harris Frank for three years and manager in Lakewood for the past year.

Also elected at the Merchant's Association meeting were Harlan Munneke, Lynn's Hallmark Store, vice president; and Carolyn Uhl, United California Bank, secretary-treasurer.

Attendance at California amusement areas off

By JACK LEFLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The gasoline shortage and inflation put a dent in amusement attendance in California in 1974, but a lot of people still spent money for a good time.

The gasoline shortage had mixed effects. It kept some people at home while others who usually take long trips settled for short ones. The prospect of gasoline prices going to 75 cents or 80 cents a gallon under President Ford's fuel program drew varied reaction from park operators.

Disneyland in Anaheim reported that attendance fell to 9.7 million in its October 1973-September 1974 fiscal year from 10.1 million in the previous year.

"A lot of our attendance was local," said a Disneyland spokesman. "The out-of-state attendance was down. Even if the price of gasoline rises, we expect our local visitors to increase," Marineland of the Pacific, where trained whales and porpoises cavort, registered an increase in 1974 to 785,885 from 687,773 in 1973. This park, too, expects local patronage to rise even if gasoline prices soar.

Stars will be out tonight, Sunday

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

The stars will be out tonight — and throughout the day on Sunday — to participate in the 20th annual "Stop Arthritis Telethon."

From 11:30 this evening until 6 p.m. Sunday, the fund-raising show will air on Channel 5 (KTLA). Tune in at any time and you'll catch some celebrities.

Jack Klugman, Jim Nabors, Bob Crane, Sue Ane Langdon, Gordon MacRae, Maureen Reagan, Betty White and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley are scheduled to join hosts Jane Wyman and Allen Ludden at the show's opening.

Others due to appear during the 18½-hour telethon include Bob Hope, Rosalind Russell, Rock Hudson, Karen Valentine, Lily Tomlin, Edward Asner, Robert Stack, Glenn Ford, Lorne Greene, Ann Blyth, Joseph Campanella, Bill Daily, Jo Ann Worley, Gisele MacKenzie, Rick Sase, Claire Trevor, Royce, Buddy Rogers and Cesar Romero.

Musical groups that will perform include Lawrence Welk's orchestra, the Ink Spots, Custer's Last Band, Nellie Lutcher Trio, the Roaring 20s Band, Sheriff's Rhythm Posse, Bobby Troup Quartet, the Valleyaires Barbershop Chorus and Manny Harmon's Orchestra.

Hobo Kelly, Billy Barty and other children's favorites will be on stage Sunday morning.

Jack Rourke is anchorman and producer, and Bud Furillo heads a sports personalities' panel.

FOR TENNIS and basketball fans, it's a big weekend on the tube.

U.S.-Mexico Davis Cup competition from the Palm Springs Racquet Club will be televised, live, on Channel 2, starting at 3 p.m. today and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

And, on Sunday morning at 10, you can see the $100,000 winner-take-all challenge match between Rod Laver and Jimmy Connors at the indoor tennis pavilion at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. This also will be on Channel 2 (CBS).

Basketball buffs get tonight's UCLA-USC game in Pauley Pavilion at 8 on Channel 5. The same station also offers the Maryland-North Carolina State game (top-3) at 1 p.m. today and the Stanford-California contest at 3 p.m.

On Sunday afternoon, you can see the Milwaukee Bucks play the Boston Celtics on Channel 2 at noon.

Another sports attraction on the tube Sunday afternoon is the finals of the "Women's Superstars" competition, Channel 7 at 12:30. Don't let anyone talk you into any bets, though; these events were taped a few days ago.

"CITIZEN KANE," rated by many as a movie classic, will be shown on Channel 11 at 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. today and at 8 p.m. Sunday. Orson Welles stars in the 1941 drama, in black and white, as a newspaper tycoon.

For lovers of crime dramas, two movies from the theaters make their TV debuts this weekend. Tonight, from 9 to 11:15, Channel 7 presents "Electra Glide in Blue," a 1973 film starring Robert Blake, of the new "Baretta" series, as a motorcycle cop.

And Sunday night, from 8:30 to 10:30, Channel 7 offers "Crazy Joe," a 1974 film starring Peter Boyle as a crime czar.

The ABC network plans to make an announcement preceding each both movies to warn viewers that the films may not be suitable for all members of the family.

"COUNTRY MATTERS," a four-part drama series based on short stories by A. E. Coppard and H. E. Bates about English country life in the 1920s, will be presented on "Masterpiece Theatre," beginning Sunday, at 8:30 p.m., on Channel 28. The first offering will be Coppard's "The Higglers."

DICK CAVETT, now with CBS, will host "The Sullivan Years: A Tribute to Ed," a 60-minute special featuring highlights from Sullivan's 23-year TV variety series, on Channel 2 at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

SAM YORTY's new discussion series makes its bow on Channel 13 from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday. L. A. Police Chief Ed Davis and Supervisor James Hayes are scheduled as guests.

CLIVE DAVIS, former president of Columbia Records, will be interviewed by Ron McCoy on the new "Audio Opinion" show on KNAC (105.5 FM) at 10 p.m. Sunday.

SC-UCLA: a psychological battle

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

When John Wooden took over the UCLA basketball program 27 years ago, USC held a 59-19 lead in its series with the Bruins. If Wooden's UCLA team wins its game with USC tonight at 8 in Pauley Pavilion, the series will be even at 79-79.

It would be another remarkable achievement for the Wizard of Westwood, whose teams have won nine national collegiate championships in the last 11 seasons.

"Records are nice," said Wooden on the eve of the Bruins' important Pacific-8 encounter with the Trojans, "but I'm more concerned about the net effect of a win."

UCLA goes into tonight's locally televised (8 p.m., Ch. 5) game with a 14-2 record and USC is 13-2, but both are 3-1 in Pacific-8 competition. The winner will move into a tie for the league lead with Oregon State, which is idle from Pacific-8 action this week. Stanford, also 3-1, plays at Cal today.

At midweek, USC coach Bob Boyd attempted to minimize Pauley Pavilion as a factor.

"Most of our players like to play over there," said Boyd. "It's a well-lighted place, and it's away from the crowd. I don't think it psychs out our players."

Wooden disagreed, noting that UCLA has won 76 in a row at home and has lost only twice in 146 games at Pauley.

"Bob is a fine young coach with some good ideas," said Wooden, "but I think he's dead wrong about that. I want his players to realize that Pauley gives us a tremendous advantage. I want them to remember that and think about it."

Wooden said that "USC is still the team to beat in our conference."

"If we lose, it won't be because we weren't ready to play or lacking in intensity," he said. "I think we ing the possibility of starting Marques Johnson in place of Pat Trgovich, while Boyd is at a coin-flipping stage on forwards Bob Trowbridge and Greg White.

"It doesn't make much difference who starts," said Wooden. "Whether he starts or not, Marques Johnson will be in there a lot."

In the past, Boyd has attempted to slow the tempo against the Bruins, but this year the Trojans appear to be a better running team than UCLA.

"If both teams play with the speed and tempo they have established to Poly...Wilson...Compton... a deadheat!

Anyone have a parachute?

Jordan High's Dan Gillaspie jumps so high he almost puts a hole in the roof, and hauls down rebound against Poly Friday evening. Poly won Moore League encounter, 70-57.

Pasadena fights off LBCC in overtime

Foul trouble and the lack of a big man in overtime cost Long Beach City College the Metropolitan Conference lead in Pasadena Friday night.

The Vikings squandered a 32-point barrage by freshman center Jeff McHugh and a 27-point performance by sophomore forward Steve Sincok and fell to the Lancers, 89-84, in a battle for the conference's top spot.

Ironically, McHugh had little to say about the outcome. He committed the first overtime foul, his fifth, with 11 seconds elapsed in the extra period.

Without his hot hand and 6-8 frame the Vikings fell behind quickly and recovered only briefly late in the period.

Twenty-three fouls were whistled against the Vikings, six in overtime, and the Lancers used their opportunities at the line to break the 75-75 regulation score by sinking 10 of 11 free throws.

Tarbabes upset Bruins

Wilson High's reign as the Moore League's only undefeated basketball team lasted less than 48 hours.

Compton saw to that Friday afternoon, handing the Bruins their first loss in four league games, 62-60, on a lay-in by Tyrone Davis in the final 13 seconds.

T. Davis was wide open under the basket, taking a perfect pass from Derek Davis, who was near the top of the free throw circle.

Both Wilson losses in a 17-2 season have been by two points. Compton is 10-5 and, more important, has a share of the league lead.

THE HOST Tarbabes stalled the final 1:24 to get off a last shot after Wilson had seen a similar tactic backfire.

The Bruins tied the score at 60 when Neil Arnold converted two free throws at 3:57, then turned the ball over twice on fouls.

The first time, shots by D. Davis and Lew McGlothlin went astray at 2:50. Jerry Anderson rebounding for Wilson.

But Mike Miller was called for a blocking foul away from the ball at 1:24, giving Compton its second chance.

Wilson, taking a time out with 0:10 to play after T. Davis scored, saw a last-second shot by Arnold from the baseline deflect off the side of the backboard.

THE 6-2 Bruin forward had single-handedly rallied his team from a 51-50 deficit entering the final quarter, accounting for all 10 Wilson points down the stretch.

He finished with 25 points, and missed only three shots in 13 attempts. Compton had to play well to beat a Wilson team that hit 70 per cent (26-of-37) of its shots.

The Tarbabes also hit a high percentage of their shots, 25-of-46, and like Wilson scored a lot of easy baskets after successfully getting past a 2-2-1 press.

Wilson, working for excellent position, didn't attempt a shot further than 15 feet from the basket.

Compton trailed from the outset, but surged ahead 37-36 at halftime with six unanswered points by T. Davis in the last two minutes.

The Bruins built a five-point lead in the third quarter, 46-41, but cooled off again after Joe Stinson fouled out and Arnold was forced out with his fourth foul.

Bayi wins mile debut in 3:59.3

NEW YORK (UPI) — Filbert Bayi, the Tanzanian rabbit, rocketed to the front after the second lap of the Millrose Games Wanamaker Mile and stayed there Friday night, holding off a desperate finishing kick from Brigham Young's Paul Cummings to win the event in a meet record time of 3:59.3 before a sellout crowd at Madison Square Garden.

Marty Liquori, who had been expected to provide Bayi's stiffest competition, was never a factor, finishing a disappointing fourth with a time of 4:07.8—his first loss of the 1975 indoor season. Third was Wilson Waigwa from Texas-El Paso.

Al Feuerbach of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach won the shot put at 68-11½; teammate Francie Larrieu missed the indoor 1,000 yard record by only one-tenth in winning at 2:26.8, and Dwight Stones, also of the PCC, high jumped 7-2, but lost on the miss countback to Mel Embree of Harvard.

Lynwood ups lead by defeating Paramount

By LINDA LAWRENCE

Lynwood High padded its San Gabriel Valley League lead with a 65-57 triumph over Paramount Friday while Norwalk was knocking off second-place Downey, 52-51.

Lynwood upped its league record to 8-0-14-5 over-all and widened its lead to two games.

Darrell Allums, a junior center, pumped in 20 points and balanced scoring from Tom Freeman (11) and Dave Mullins (12).

Cerritos Dons captured the top spot in the Suburban League race with an 83-64 win over Neff.

Cerritos holds an 8-1 record while Neff and Gahr are now 7-2.

Miller sank 11 of 14 floor attempts while Hall sank 9 of 21 attempts and pulled down nine rebounds.

The first half was a saw circus as the teams committed 22 turnovers. Neff gained a 33-28 margin at the first-half buzzer.

Tied in the second quarter, 28-28, with one minute remaining, Neff grabbed its narrow lead by three successful free throws.

Neff's Steve McCarthy led the scoring in the first half with 15 points while Cerritos' usually high scoring combination of Hall and Ben Howland were held to nine points.

When the third quarter began it looked like a close match, but as early as 6:13, Cerritos showed its intentions. The Dons began a scoring drive, tossing in 13 consecutive points for a 54-44 lead entering the final period.

Neff tried to narrow the gap. For six minutes, the Trojans desperately lobbed deep passes into the front court but with 1:42 remaining Cerritos broke open, allowing only one more free throw and a field goal at the nine-second mark.

Hall and Miller, both playing in foul trouble, sank the final two baskets. McCarthy led Neff with 17.

Mayfair, Gahr win

Dennis Huff scored 10 of his 20 points in the first quarter to propel Gahr past Glenn, 80-51.

Gahr outscored Glenn 23-10 in the opening period. Huff hit 9 of 12 shots from the floor, as Gahr moved into a second place tie, one game behind Cerritos.

Andy Serrano added 10 for the winners while George Dull scored 17 for Glenn. Gahr hit 33 of 54 shots from the field and 14 of 24 from the free throw line.

Sophomore Rick Dittine scored 24 points and Danny Penunuri added 12 to lead Mayfair past Artesia, 63-52.

Dittine also collected 12 rebounds while Curt Skinner, in his first varsity start, hit seven points and had six steals.

David Stebbins scored 20 and Bill Woolsey added 14 for Artesia.

Verbum Dei finds stall appealing

They say that 'charity begins at home.' But Bishop Montgomery may have taken the axiom to an extreme in bowing to the top-ranked 4-A power Verbum Dei by the incredible score of 77-18 at Bishop Montgomery High Friday evening.

Verbum Dei held leads of 11-0 after the first period, 31-2 at the half and 57-8 after three quarters as Bishop stubbornly continued a stall.

Roy Hamilton led all scorers with 20 points-two points more than the Bishop total.

VERBUM DEI (77): R. Hamilton 20, G. Hamilton 12, Greenwood 12, M. Hamilton 11, Anderson 12, Marshall 2, Sanchez 4, Alexander 2.

Can Aztecs out-muscle Long Beach?

49ers risk PCAA lead tonight at San Diego State

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—San Diego State coach Tim Vezie is more than a little excited about his team's Pacific Coast Athletic Association meeting tonight with visiting Long Beach State.

"We haven't beaten Long Beach since I've been here," Vezie said Friday. "I think it's something like 11 losses in a row, but we're optimistic about our chances. I'm so excited about the game that I'm thinking of suiting up."

"If you see a No. 15 suddenly flash into the game, you'll know who it is."

It isn't likely that Vezie will be in uniform, but he is sure to be wearing the same pair of roller skates he has worn in the Aztecs' first 16 games.

Virtually, he's coaching the Aztecs from a moving van.

He was hired as "interim coach" Sept. 1 when San Diego's coach of six seasons, Dick Davis, suddenly resigned to accept a position with the European Professional Basketball Association.

While Vezie has directed the young Aztecs to an 8-8 season, including a 2-0 mark in PCAA competition, San Diego State athletic officials have been conducting a very noisy search for a successor.

"That (the search) has definitely been a psychological drawback in many ways," says Vezie.

"I know it has bothered the players doubly when we've lost close games because they not only want to be successful as a team, but they want me to be successful as a coach."

A triumph tonight over the five-time conference champion 49ers wouldn't hurt Vezie's campaign.

"But we're not looking at the Long Beach game that way," Vezie contends. "I don't want to put that kind of burden on anyone, including myself. That would be unfair. Besides, we don't need that as extra incentive."

The Aztecs play a power-type game "much like Long Beach," says Vezie.

Some observers feel that San Diego has replaced Long Beach as the PCAA's most physical team. It has a football-sized lineup of 6-6 Steve Copp, 6-7½ Will Connelly, 6-8 Allen Bunting or 6-3½ Gary Earle, 6-6 Bob Kovach, the team's leading conference scorer, and 6-2 Mark Delsman.

"We are a very physical basketball team," admits Vezie, "and we're just starting to play well together. We were inexperienced early in the season and I'm sure that it cost us some games we could have won."

But I think those losses are starting to pay off for us now."

The Aztecs suffered narrow defeats at the hands of powers Washington State, Arizona State, Arizona, Purdue, and Marquette.

It is unlikely the 49ers will be at full strength tonight.

Center Carlos Mina, the team's No. 3 scorer, missed Thursday night's 76-67 victory over Cal State Fullerton with an ankle sprain and wasn't certain if he would be available for the San Diego game.

Mina, a 6-8 senior from El Centro, spent virtually all of Friday undergoing treatment.

Tonight's 8 o'clock encounter will be broadcast on KFOX-AM (1280). KNAC-FM (105.5) will provide pregame, halftime and post-game reports.

Golf lead to Laura Baugh

MIAMI (UPI)—Laura Baugh scrambled to a 4-under-par 68 Friday to take a one-shot lead in the first round of the $40,000 Burdines Invitational golf tournament.

The 19-year-old former Wilson High homecoming queen got off to a shaky start but then streaked to six birdies and a bogey over an eight-hole span in the middle of her round.

One shot behind at 69 were Janet Caponi Lepera and Kathy McMullen. There was a six-way logjam at 70.

"I started off rough," said Laura. "When I got to the first tee, I discovered I didn't have my glove. I had to go back to the locker room and get it."

After struggling to five pars and a bogey on her first six holes, she started her streak that was kept going by a sensational birdie-4 on the 10th hole.

Tanner gives Yanks split

Smith upset in Davis Cup

PALM SPRINGS — Roscoe Tanner needed only one hour to outclass Roberto Chavez 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 Friday to give the United States a split of the opening Davis Cup matches with Mexico after Raul Ramirez upset former Forest Hills and Wimbledon champion Stan Smith 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, 8-6.

Tanner, a former NCAA champion from Stanford University by way of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., overpowered Chavez, 25, the reigning Mexican national singles champion.

Ramirez, in his second year on the World Championship Tennis tour, came back strongly after losing the first set against the favored Smith, the No. 2-ranked American.

Tanner, in his Davis Cup debut, didn't appear to feel any pressure in outclassing his slim Mexican opponent. In the ninth game of the third set, Tanner had three service aces and Chavez returned only one ball for a love game victory to clinch the match.

Dennis Ralston, the U.S. coach and captain, said, "I still think we're going to win."

"I think Roscoe could have beaten anybody today. Well, I won't go into names. The Monday morning quarterbacks can figure that one out."

Ralston was referring to Jimmy Connors, the reluctant No. 1-ranked American who has declined to play on the last three U.S. Davis Cup teams.

Tanner didn't watch Smith lose the first match to Ramirez and said he felt no pressure because of Smith's defeat.

"All I can do is win my match," he said. "That's what I tried to keep on my mind. We're in good shape now."

While Ralston was being interviewed at the end of the day, Pancho Contreras, the Mexican Davis Cup captain and coach, stuck his head into the crowd and asked mischievously, "Denny, have you named your doubles team yet?"

Contreras later disclosed he was leaning toward a team of Ramirez and Vicente Zarazua, 29, a 10-year Davis Cup veteran.

Ralston said he probably would go with Dick Stockton and Bob Lutz.

Sunday, Ramirez will face Tanner in the first singles match and Smith will go against Chavez.

The 6-foot 4 Smith, three inches taller than his rival from Ensenada, Mexico, had seven service aces to one for Ramirez.

In addition, the Mexican made six double faults to three for Smith.

But Smith continually smashed lobs from Ramirez into the net or out of bounds.

Ramirez, who quit the University of Southern California to join the WCT tour, beat Smith twice last year but lost to him when the pair met on cement at La Costa.

Charge! Arnie challenges at Hawaiian Open

Combined Wire Services

HONOLULU — Arnold Palmer, the man who introduced the word "charge" to golf's lexicon, stormed into contention Friday in the second round of the $220,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament — only one stroke behind leader Al Geiberger.

Palmer, now 45 and a non-winner for two years, nonetheless drew the biggest gallery as he quick-stepped his way to a five-under-par 67 — matching the day's best round — and climbed into a four-way tie at 136.

"It's very encouraging," Palmer admitted. "I'm playing better. I've missed one green and made one bogey in two days. It feels good, real good."

Geiberger played in something approaching solitude — most of the gallery stayed with Palmer — but rewarded his smattering of fans with a birdie-birdie finish for a 69 and a 135.

"After playing two days without a bogey, naturally I'm pleased," Geiberger said of his six-birdie performance. "The greens were beautiful and I can't believe they were so fast after the rain."

Geiberger was philosophical about the pressure of leading. "All you do is keep looking ahead and try to get all

READ PACES TOP FUEL DRAGSTERS

POMONA (AP) — Gary Read, a 32-year-old machinist from El Monte, broke the six-second barrier Friday with a clocking of 5.972 to pace top fuel qualifying at the National Hot Rod Association Winter Nationals.

Read, whose elapsed time was the first sub-six-second effort of the year in drag racing, had a speed of 231.36 mph and he took the lead from early leader Shirley "Cha Cha" Muldowney.

Ms. Muldowney, the only woman in the country driving a top fuel dragster, had taken the lead with a 6.031 clocking. The veteran racer from Mt. Clemens, Mich., had her engine explode at the end of the run, but she managed to stop the car without incident.

Jeb Allen of Santa Rosa had the third quickest time of the day, 6.036 seconds, and the day's fastest speed, 241.28 mph.

Don Garlits of Seffner, Fla., the acknowledged king of drag racing, had one late run of 6.309 seconds. Defending champion Gary Beck of Edmonton, Canada, failed to get on the track.

Leading the funny car division was Mike Miller, Mt. Lake Terrace, Wash., with a run of 6.316 and 213.77 mph. Pro stock leader was Wayne Gapp of Birmingham, Mich., at 8.81 and 154.37 mph.

More than 600 cars registered to run in the $250,000 event.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Will there be a 1975 season for the World Football League?

League president Chris Hemmert said Friday that a "go or no go" decision on the matter would be reached by March 15.

Until then, Hemmert said that he will be working on a three-phase program: to establish credibility for the league, to open communications in areas in which franchises might be located, and to arrange for funding of the teams.

"If all eight clubs vote unanimously to release the funds put up in escrow, then the World Football League will be re-organized," Hemmert said of the March 15 decision. "If not, we'll close our doors and go home. I am now extremely confident of the rebirth of the league."

PAUL DIETZEL, former head football coach and athletic director at the University of South Carolina, announced his resignation from the university staff Friday.

Dietzel had accepted the newly-created post of vice-president for university relations after a reshuffling of the school's athletic department.

Sources said Dietzel was considering a position at Indiana University. Indiana officials said they had made no decision on a new athletic director.

MEMBERS of the Morgan State varsity basketball team have notified athletic director Earl Banks that they will not play until coach Nat Frazier is reinstated.

Frazier, small-college coach of the year last season when Morgan captured the NCAA Division II championship, was suspended following an allegation by a referee that Frazier cursed and touched him after a fifth foul was called on a Morgan player.

After being informed of the referee's accusations by Banks, Frazier apologized for any actions "unbecoming to the school" by either he or his players, although he "categorically" denied the charges.

"The next thing I heard after that was in a letter from Earl telling me I was suspended," Frazier said. "I don't know what happens next."

"All I can say is the (basketball) schedule is still intact," said Banks, refusing to comment on the suspension or the players' revolt.

BRIEFLY: NCAA spokesmen said Friday they believed the fines levied by Seton Hall University against its athletic director and two basketball coaches for recruiting violations are a first. Seton Hall president Msgr. Thomas G. Fahy Thursday fined and suspended athletic director Richie Rogan, and coaches William Rafferty and Horace Mahon while ruling player Glenn Mosley ineligible. Mosley's suspension is pending appeal. A judge refused Friday to lift a 90-day suspension that barred Roxane Snider from competing for her high school ski team because she was caught smoking cigarettes.

Connors not awed by Laver or press

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The irascible Jimmy Connors showed Friday he is not awed in the presence of tennis great Rod Laver, whom he plays Sunday for $100,000.

The brash young Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion arrived 25 minutes late for his news conference with the 36-year-old Australian and hinted he will be a free spirit in the nationally televised match.

"You never know," he said when asked how he would act in what is billed as the heavyweight championship match of tennis. "These days you never know."

A reporter pointed out that Connors had been on his best behavior in December in the Australian Open, where he lost in four sets to John Newcombe.

"I can't explain that," the 22-year-old Connors said with a grin. "That's the first I acted like that. Maybe it'll be the last."

Kings mobilize for Montreal invasion

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

It's billed as a hockey match, not World War III, but you wouldn't know it judging from the reaction of the Kings.

Occupying sole possession of first place, the Kings will train their guns on Montreal tonight in hopes of opening a four-point bulge in the NHL's tightest division race.

Interest is so high over the battle at the Forum that the 8 o'clock game was sold out an unprecedented five days in advance.

The Kings, who have tied the Canadiens twice on the Forum ice this season, will try to break Montreal coach Scotty Bowman's two-year grip of never losing a game at any of the NHL's three West Coast stops—Vancouver, Oakland and Los Angeles. During that span, the Canadiens are 16-0-3.

With 30 games remaining, Montreal finds itself in an unaccustomed role of trailing the Kings by two points. Bowman is so concerned about tonight's match that he hid his club the past three days in Squaw Valley.

A Montreal reporter notes that Bowman is resorting to a new psychological ploy in hopes of stirring up his team. He informed Yvan Cournoyer: "The only reason you're on the ice is because your name is Cournoyer."

The 10-year veteran is Montreal's fifth-leading scorer with 16 goals and 28 assists for 44 points. That might be considered a good total for some players, but it's a meager output for the 32-year-old right winger.

"It'll come. One night he's going to break out and score a few and it'll be all over. The guy's got too good a record to stay down much longer," said Bowman.

The Kings are hoping the league's most feared skater remains bogged down for at least one more night.

But, there's nothing wrong with Guy Lafleur, who is enjoying his finest season. Lafleur has connected for 40 goals and 43 assists to lead all Canadian scorers with 83 points. Only Boston's Phil Esposito has more goals, 45.

Pete Mahovlich is second with 24 goals and 47 assists for 71 points.

Ken Dryden finally has pulled his goals-against average below the 3.00 mark. After 35 games, Dryden packs a 2.91 average.

ICE CUBES: Washington coach Jim Anderson inquired after the Caps' 6-4 loss Thursday if Vic Venasy and Mike Corrigan are available. Anderson conferred with Kings' g.m. Jake Milford over a possible deal. Venasy has played only three games this season while Corrigan has been a spot player all year.

The Kings' offense continues to show a marked revival. In the last 11 games, Kings have scored five or more goals eight times. The Kings have fewest losses in league, eight, one less than Montreal. The Kings are 14-4-6 at home this season while Canadiens own second best record in NHL, 13-4-8. The Kings boast best away from home mark, 15-4-7.

Bob Nevin, Butch Goring and Tommy Williams remain on a tear. Nevin has 8 goals and 21 points; last 11 games; Goring has 9 goals and 21 points in his last 11 games; Williams has 5 goals and 10 points in last six starts. In the last 13 games, the Nevin-Goring-Dammy Maloney line has been smokin'. They have 24 goals and 36 assists for 60 points. When Maloney scored his 18th goal against Caps, it was his career high. Defenseman Bob Murdoch needs only one more goal to match his career high of eight in one season. With three goals this season, defenseman Neil Komadoski equalled his previous two-year output with the Kings.

Post-1967 expansion teams currently lead all four divisions.

Team captain Terry Harper said on the eve of tonight's game: "The pressure is on the Canadiens because we're in first place now. Even though we lead, this game coming up is big and is going to be just as tough. We still have the pressure of knowing that we're playing Montreal and that to finish in first place we have to beat them. And will they ever be ready for us? They'll be very conscious of the fact that they can leave here either tied with us for the division lead or end up four points behind. The key to victory is you can't play wide open against them—they beat you that way because they're great skaters. Close checking will frustrate them, which is what we did in our last game when we won. One of the big reasons we'd like to beat Montreal is everybody picked them for first place."

Four golfers tied for second in the satellite event to the Hawaiian Open.

At 137 were Jim Powell of Los Angeles, Bill Greenleaf of St. Louis, Tom Jenkins of Houston and David Barber of Bakersfield, who had led after a first round 67 but finished with a 70.

Nordskog favored in offshore race

The Catalina Fun Run offshore power boat race begins today, 10 a.m., off Belmont Pier with veteran pilot Bob Nordskog favored to win the two-day event.

Betty Cook, winner of Rum Run XIV, is expected to supply the major competition for Nordskog.

Sutton, Harris lead Celeb golf

PALM SPRINGS (Special)—A Dodger and a Ram made a perfect pair Friday in the opening round of the $30,000 American Airlines baseball-football golf tournament at Canyon Country Club.

Pitcher Don Sutton of the Dodgers fired an 81-9-72 and Ram quarterback James Harris carded a 98-22-76, but somehow they "ham and egged it" to produce a 16-under-par 55 in the best ball event to assume a two-stroke lead in the field of 32 teams.

"I just tee it up and hit it," said Harris, "and I'm never sure where it's going. I didn't even know we were doing that well. Don is the secretary, so ask him how we did it."

Sutton, who played out of California CC in Whittier, produced a net eagle and birdie on the last two holes when Harris shot 8-8. "That's the way it went all day. When I was bad, 'Snack' was good and vice-versa," Sutton said.

Harris rolled in a 40-foot putt for a net eagle on a hole on which Sutton hit two balls out of bounds. The Dodger hurler also had a natural birdie on a hole on which Harris 5-putted from 12 feet.

Joe Namath of the New York Jets (77-12-65) and Bobby Bonds of the New York Yankees (83-17-66) were tied for second at 57 with Sal Bando of the Oakland A's (88-22-66) and Marv Hubbard of the Oakland Raiders (84-14-70).

Long Beach's Jeff Burroughs and partner Bob Anderson of the Denver Broncos, the defending champions, were well off the pace with a 35-30-65 despite a 4-over-par 75 by Burroughs, who had the low round of the day.

"Baseball players aren't used to getting up at 9 a.m., let alone tee off at that time," explained Burroughs, who went out in 42 and came back in 33. "I didn't even wake up, physically, until the back nine."

Burroughs, the 23-year-old slugger of the Texas Rangers, birdied three holes in a four-hole stretch on the back nine at the par-71, 6,500-yard South course. Jeff carries a 6-handicap, lowest in the field.

Normally a straight hitter, Burroughs found himself stymied behind trees five times in the first nine holes. Two long putts by Anderson saved the team from going over-par on the outgoing nine.

Handicaps are subject to minor revision each day, but since Harris and Sutton didn't shoot under par on their own ball it is likely they won't face an adjustment.

Largest event for women City bowling title play begins today

The 29th Long Beach Women's Bowling Association city tournament opens a four-week run tonight at Cal Bowl with a team event squad scheduled to take to the lanes at 7 p.m.

LBWBA president Cathy Gordon will preside over the 6:30 opening ceremonies.

This year's entry field is the largest in the tournament's history with 1,664 women bowling 12,240 games before the event ends on Feb. 23. There are 416 four-woman teams, 606 in the doubles event, 1,212 in the singles event and 1,190 in the all events.

The tournament, largest staff bowling event in Long Beach each year, swings into full scale action Sunday with team event squads at 9 and 11:30 a.m., 2, 4:30 and 7 p.m.

Cal Bowl is a 40-lane facility located at 2400 Carson Blvd. in Lakewood. Spectators are welcome to view the tournament free of charge.

Abbott wins Corona golf

CORONA (AP)—Brian Abbott of Pensacola, Fla. shot a five-under-par 67 Friday for a two-round total of 136, eight-under-par, and claimed a one-stroke victory in the $10,000 Corona National Open golf tournament.

Four golfers tied for second in the satellite event to the Hawaiian Open.

At 137 were Jim Powell of Los Angeles, Bill Greenleaf of St. Louis, Tom Jenkins of Houston and David Barber of Bakersfield, who had led after a first round 67 but finished with a 70.

Cerritos engers take a breather

Cerritos College's surprising basketball team is idle tonight after completing the first round of South Coast Conference play as the circuit's second place team.

The Falcons' worst SCC action with the record of any team but have since won four of five contests and are only one game behind first-place Santa Ana College. Cerritos takes on a pair of Metropolitan Conference foes next week before resuming conference play Feb. 12.

Volleyball meet at Long Beach CC

Three Long Beach teams are among 15 competing in today's regional Single A men's volleyball tournament at Long Beach City College.

Opal's Beach Hutt, host Long Beach City College and the Viking alumni are entered in day-long event starting at 9 a.m. Other entries include El Camino College, Hitman of Lakewood, Chuck's Steak House, UC Irvine and Santa Monica City College.

Scale lilies pay over long term

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Scale lilies often are not regarded as perennials, although they are. They bloom annually. The Easter lily-like fragrant blossoms are available in an interesting range of colors, including white, pinks, rose, yellows and orange. These hybrid bulbous plants provide lots of late spring and early summer color.

The scale — like bulbs remind one of pine cones although the individual segments curve inward. The bulbs multiply if left undisturbed in the garden. Leave them three or four years before digging them up. Separate them, then replant them. The plants are fed as they begin to bloom. They store some of the nourishment for the next year. (Spring-blooming, solid bulbs, also are fed as they begin to flower.) don't like a high-nitrogen fertilizer. They, primarily, are fed for blooming rather than to enrich the foliage growth.

Check the nurseries for these lily bulbs and plant them in partial shade in a soil that drains well.

A potted Easter lily that we continued to water after it finished blooming was fertilized with a flower-fruit power fertilizer four times. The new plant stalk grew up, as the old flower stalk died, and sprouted three flowers last October. The blossoms lasted over a month because the plant was outdoors in full sun. Nearly a putful of new baby lily plants appeared around the flower-stalk base. The frosts haven't affected them at all.

Ask the Old Farmer: Years ago people maintained that "oak apples" forecast weather. What are oak apples and how do they forecast the weather? F. B., Lincoln, Nebraska.
An oak apple is what tree folks call a "gall" that grows on a leaf after a fly has stung it. It's green to begin with and grows a little larger than a horse chestnut. After a while it turns brown and the inside is full of brown powdery junk. Old timers used to cook them in vinegar to make ink, and all kinds of folks figure that their size, color, heft, and so-on, indicate the kind of winter to come.
Home Hint: To make the job of varnishing easier, place the container of varnish in a pan of hot water. The varnish flows on easier and dries faster.
Riddle answer: He liked to go hunting instead.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Fair with thaw to start, then 1-3" coastal snow and up to 12" snow in north; end of week clear and very cold.
Greater New York-New Jersey: Week begins cloudy and unseasonably warm, then rain changing to snow and colder; partial clearing and cold with flurries latter part.
Middle Atlantic Coastal: Cloudy and mild at first, then light rain; week ends generally clear and cold.
Southeast Coastal-Piedmont: Warm spell with light rain to start, then clear and cold; mostly clear and cold latter part.
Florida: Week begins warm with scattered showers, then clearing and cool; end of week mostly sunny and mild.
Upstate & Western N.Y.-Toronto & Montreal: Rain at first, then rain changing to snow, 3-5" in north; light snow latter part in central and north.
Greater Ohio Valley: Heavy rain to start, then rain mixed with snow; week ends partly sunny and moderately cold.
Deep South: Light to moderate rain at first, then clearing and cool; latter part fair and cool in north, rainy in central and along Gulf.
Chicago & Southern Great Lakes: Week begins rainy, then cold and cloudy; end of week clear and seasonably cold.
Northern Great Plains-Great Lakes: Mostly clear and not so cold to start, then light snow in east; clear and cold latter part.
Central Great Plains: Snow in north and rain in east at first, then clear and warm; week ends generally clear and mild.
Texas-Oklahoma: Week begins cloudy and cool, then showers; end of week rainy in central, clear and cool in north and partly cloudy along Gulf.
Rocky Mountain Region: Snow to start in northwest and central mountains, clear and mild elsewhere; end of week generally sunny and mild.
Southwest Desert: Clear and mild to midweek, then slightly warmer; cool with light showers in east latter part.
Pacific Northwest: Drizzle or freezing rain in north and heavy rain in south to start, then light rain; sunny and warmer by weekend.
California: Early week clear and mild in south and cloudy in north; latter part cool and clear, then warmer in south but rainy in north.

JOBS TO DO NOW

Native sycamore trees are susceptible to a blight that causes young leaves to die. This happens when a thinner crop of leaves develops following the first frost. Ideal time to spray for that condition (as well as for bugs) is between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. The spray should be a combination of insecticide and fungus spray.
Leptospermum are fine foliage shrubs. Their branches tend to grow upright. Eventually they become spindly. Gardeners should cut back one-third of the current-season growth when plants have finished blooming.
Don't let azaleas get dry. They must be kept moderately moist. They need to be watered thoroughly. A planting medium such as sphagnum peat moss absorbs more water than most others.
